IRENE CASTLE WEDS FOR THIRD TIME

DANCER'S NEW MATE IS MILLIONAIRE

IRENE CASTLE McLAUGHLIN

Irene is married again. Everybody knows who she is, but few know of her new husband. He is "Freddie" McLaughlin, of Chicago, who is a member of the Onwentsia Polo Team, Chicago. He is said to have had more falls from his ponies and fewer hurts than any other rider. During the war, "Freddie," as a major, commanded the 333rd machine gun battalion in France.

IRENE WEDS RICH CHICAGO POLO MAN

Chicago, Nov. 30 (A.P.)—Irene Castle, the dancer, and Frederic McLaughlin, wealthy Chicago coffee merchant, were married here Wednesday evening.

The news that the widow of Vernon Castle, dancer and war hero, who lost his life while an aviator in structor in Texas and later the wife of Capt. Robert Treman, from whom she was divorced in Paris, was confirmed at the office of W. F. McLaughlin & Company, of which the bridegroom is secretary and treasurer.

The marriage took place at the McLaughlin bachelor apartments, 336 North Michigan avenue, and was

TEN LIVES LOST IN MAINE HUNT SEASON

Augusta, Me., Nov. 30.—The loss of ten lives was charged against the deer hunting season of six weeks which closes tonight in Maine, in a summary given out at the State House today. Last year's record was nine.

Three hunters were mistaken for deer—one less than last season. Four lost their lives by the accidental discharge of their own guns and one was accidentally shot by his companion. A woman was killed by a stray bullet.

LLOYD GEORGE IN BIG DRIVE FOR VOTES, RIVALS ROOSEVELT

London, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—Former Premier David Lloyd George carried his political fight into North Wales today, campaigning with the picturesque vigor that marked the "swing around the circle" of the late Theodore Roosevelt in the United States. Some days he delivers from twenty to thirty speeches.

With only four days left before the general election, December 6, betting has become lively. Bookmakers are offering 50 to 1 against a Labor government, 4 to 1 against a Liberal government and 4 to 1 against the Tories getting a majority of 100 in the House of Commons.

Premier Baldwin, fighting for a protective tariff, has failed to meet the furious pace set by Lloyd George,

SIKI THROWS $50 BILLS AWAY; NOW HE'S BROKE AND SORRY

New York, Nov. 30.—Battling Siki, penitent and all but broke, has returned from his first spree in America, during which he borrowed $1,000 spending money from his manager, Robert Moe Levy, played Coal Oil Johnny to a crowd of Harlem admirers and escaped to the wilds of New Jersey.

The battler returned to the fold two nights ago, but Robert Moe kept him in the house until today when the singular one promised to be good and not give away more than a dime at a time. He was throwing $50 bills into a sea of clutching black hands when Robert Moe found him in Harlem the other night.

"And think of it," said Robert Moe today, "when he comes back from that foolish runaway he has only $3.87 in his pockets. And a while thousand I gave him. He said he thought they were German marks, but I have educated him."

BROTHER EATS AT GROCERY; LETS AGED SISTER STARVE

Danielson, Ct., Nov. 30.—Brother Hovey Allen of Central Village goes down to the grocery store, buys a few staples and eats them on the spot. Sister Ella Allen stays at home and starves.

This is Sheriff F. C. Tillinghast's report of conditions in the home of the aged and eccentric brother and sister, following investigation by a committee of five citizens. Willard Phelps of Hartford, an official of the Connecticut Humane Society, also investigated the case.

Sheriff Tillinghast went to the Allen home Thanksgiving Day, forced an entrance and found no food in the house. Sister Ella cowered in the background, apparently in great fear of her brother. Steps are being taken to improve conditions in the household. Sister Ella, neighbors say, has not left the premises in twenty years. She is seventy.

Number of Cases of Malnutrition on Increase, Snow Reports

Thousands of Boston school children are suffering from malnutrition, according to the annual report of Assistant Superintendent of Schools William B. Snow, issued today.

The exact number of starved children in the Boston schools at the last medical survye was 3,354.

Despite the fact that the general health of the school children is improving at a gratifying rate, the number of cases of malnutrition is increasing.

In four years it has increased from 1.93 per cent. of the whole number of pupils to 2.66 per cent.

Assistant Superintendent Snow says the school authorities are concerned over the increase and experts are making a careful study of individual cases to learn whether the children are starving because they do not get enough to eat, or whether it is due to their getting the wrong kind of food, or from defective digestion.

An effective method for physical improvement of undernourished children, he says, is the open air schools, of which Boston now has twenty-four.

The general health of Boston school children has shown an enormous improvement since 1916. In that year 89.23 out of every 100 children had some physical defect or disturbance. The last survey by the medical inspectors of the department showed that the percentage of physical defects had dropped to 50.55 in the hundred.

The number of children with bad teeth, which is the principal defect noted, is falling off every year, due to the activity of the school nurses.

During the last school year 48,135 pupils reported dental work done, 18,882 by private dentists and 24,737 in hospitals.

Assistant Superintendent Snow states that the day of children being absent from schools because of toothaches is past.

2 BURNED TO DEATH; FIREBUG HUNTED

Nashua, N. H., Nov. 30.—A firebug is believed responsible for the fire that burned two men to death in a shack here, and from which two others were rescued by police. The shack was at No. 97 Ledge street.

Another man, missing, and believed to have been in the house at the time the fire broke out, is today being sought by authorities investigating to learn the cause of the blaze.

Joseph Hall, sixty, and Leo McCann, fifty, [illegible] burned to death. [illegible] Peter Jacket and Lawrence Gore, said by police to have been under the influence of alcohol, were carried to safety when firemen and officers arrived.

MISSING COLBY SENIOR BACK, MIND AFFECTED BY STUDY

Portland, Me., Nov. 30.—Everett C. Marston, senor at Colby College, who vanished Saturday night, surrendered himself to police here today.

"I read in the newspapers that I had been reported missing," he said. "Here I am."

Marston was in a haze at to where he had wandered since he left Waterville on a train on Saturday night last. He had become mentally unbalanced from overstudy.

He left here today for his home in Augusta. There his family had been grief stricken since his disappearance. They were overjoyed when police communicated their son's whereabouts.

"We will celebrate with a late Thanksgiving but nevertheless a real one," was the reply that came flashing over the wire to the son in police headquarters.

SELLS GAS AT 12 1-2 CENTS; WANTS TO DIE QUICKLY

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 30.—The Brown Garage Company, independent oil dealers, offered gasoline today for 10½ cents a gallon, plus the two cents State tax. This price is three cents below that set by Governor McMaster recently when he declared that oil dealers were profiteering at 16 cents plus tax.

For two weeks the State has been selling gasoline at 15½ cents, including tax, while the dealers charged 17½ cents. In announcing the price reduction, the company stated: "At 12½ cents we can die quickly and with less torture. We prefer to die quickly."

LAWYER HELD IN AUTO CASE; SAYS COP 'INSULTED' HIM

Attorney Harry H. Nayor of No. 185 Pleasant street, Brookline, was in Brighton court today on charges of not having his proper license with him while operating his auto and not having the car lighted.

Patrolman Keiensen testified that when he questioned Nayor the latter told him he was an attorney and didn't need any lights. Nayor said the officer was insulting.

Judge Connelly found Nayor guilty of not having the proper license with him, but continued the case for one month when the attorney stated he planned to bring the matter of the officer's alleged conduct to the attention of Police Commissioner Wilson. Sentence was held in abeyance.

NEEDS CASH TO KEEP UP BUSINESS

Former Democratic Gubernatorial Candidate Has Committee Named to Aid Him

WANTED—Some hard cold cash. Lots of it. By Richard H. Long, one time candidate for Governor, and head of the R. H. Long Company, the R. H. Long Motors Company and the R. H. Long Shoe Company.

He is one of the best known business men in Greater Boston. But today his business affairs are in such a tangle Boston experts have been engaged to straighten things out.

His assets have been found by industrial engineers to be $1,875,000, tied up in his various businesses.

His liabilities are $1,200,000. Endorsed notes of automobile buyers classed as contingent liabilities total $800,000.

At the request of Mr. Long, there

PROBE FINANCES OF EX-SECRETARY FALL

Washington, Nov. 30.—Testimony relating to the personal financial status of Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, was given before the Senate Public Lands Committee today when it resumed investigation of the lease of the Teapot Dome naval reserve. It was during Fall's term as secretary that the lease was signed. Testimony was to the effect that Fall, who was "broke" while a Senator, showed evidence of great riches after becoming Secretary of the Interior.

COOLIDGE PROBES PLOT AGAINST DAKOTA LIGNITE

Washington, Nov. 30.—Acting on a telegram received from Governor Nestos of North Dakota, and other citizens of that State, President Coolidge directed the Interstate Commerce Commission to make a special inquiry into allegations that increased freight rates on lignite mined in North Dakota amounted to a conspiracy to destroy the State's lignite mining industry.

NEW CRUISER ON WAY HERE; AFTER RECORD

Rockland, Me., Nov. 30.—The recent cruiser Richmond, having completed standardization trials, left port today on her four-hour full power run.

It was believed a new record for this new class of warships will be established. The result was to be made known upon arrival at Boston Navy Yard this afternoon. Her best mile in the standardization trial was at the rate of 34.62 knots.

Rear Admiral H. S. Burrage, president of the trial board, announced the next trial on the Rockland course would be that of the new superdreadnought Colorado in February.

R. H. LONG TURNS HIS BUSINESS OVER TO COMMITTEE OF EXPERTS

DEMOCRATIC EX-CANDIDATE NEEDS READY CASH TO RUN HIS ENTERPRISES

was a meeting of the creditors of the three concerns at Boston Nov. 16 at which the companies' condition was discussed and this committee was named to conduct a preliminary survey and make recommendations: Wilbur H. Higgins, of the Old Colony Trust Co., Boston; George E. Pierce, of the National Shawmut Bank of Boston; Robert M. Falkenau, of the Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Co., of New York; T. M. Ragan, of the American Credit Indemnity Co., of Boston, and W. S. Shepard, of the Worcester Bank & Trust Co.

This committee employed the Boston industrial engineers to investigate thre situation. The engineers found nothing to indicate insolvency but rather a lack of liquid working capital.

"To the creditors of the R. H. Long Company, the R. H. Long Motors Company and the R. H. Long Shoe Company:

"At a meeting of the creditors called by Richard H. Long on November 16 last, the undersigned were designated as a temporary committee to investigate the financial affairs of R. H. Long Company, R. H. Long Motors Company and R. H. Long Shoe Company.

"This temporary committee employed Caswell & Woods Associates of Boston, industrial engineers of experience in the automobile industry, to investigate the situation. The investigation had to be made promptly and therefore could not include a complete audit of the books.

"The R. H. Long Company is the present company. Substantially all its stock is owned by Richard H. Long and members of his family. The R. H. Long Motors Company owns the principal manufacturing plant in Framingham, the Worcester factory erected in 1922, the inventory of finished Bay State automobiles and materials for their manufacture and the equipment contained in the Framingham plant.

AUTOS CHIEF BUSINESS.

"The R. H. Long Shoe Co. owns the inventory, machines and accounts appertaining to the manufacture of shoes. The R. H. Long Co. owns the stock of the two subsidiary companies, a considerable amount of land in Framingham upon which are located a large wooden shoe factory, several brick buildings for the manufacture of shoe machinery, together with an inventory which include war materials believed to have a substantial value.

"It did own a large tract of land adjacent to the new factory building in Worcester. This land has been transferred to R. H. Long as trustee for the R. H. Long Co.

"The principal business of the companies today is the manufacture of Bay State automobiles. The R. H. Long Motors Company does the manufacturing and the R. H. Long company the selling. The R. H. Long Shoe Company has not been operated since September 1, 1923.

NOTES ON CARS.

"There have been many inter-company transactions. Many notes which have been discounted have been endorsed by two or more of the companies. A clear picture of the situation requires that the affairs of the three companies be treated as a whole.

"Messrs. Caswell & Woods estimate the assets of the three companies at about $1,875,000, their direct liabilities at about $1,200,000, and their contingent liabilities at about $800,000. This estimate of assets was made upon the basis of a prompt and careful liquidation of the inventories and surplus assets as a going concern.

"A substantial part of the contingent liabilities are upon customers' car notes which have been endorsed by one or more of the companies and discounted. By continuing the business as a going concern it is fair to assume that only a small part of these car notes will have to be met by the companies.

"The foregoing figures do not include claims of the R. H. Long company against the United States on account of war contracts or claims of the government against the R. H. Long company for additional income and war profits taxes.

NOT INSOLVENT.

"Even a rough estimation of these claims cannot be made without a more careful study than available time has afforded. A field audit by a representative of the Bureau of Internal Revenue suggests an additional tax liability of possibly $1,400,000.

"Mr. Long, however, expresses the belief that the additional taxes, if any, will be very small. The tax situation, however, calls for immediate and careful study.

"Messrs. Caswell & Woods report that their preliminary examination of the companies' books and records disclosed nothing to indicate insolvency. There is a lack of liquid working capital and a consequent inability on the part of the companies promptly to meet current liabilities.

"Messrs. Caswell & Woods have expressed the belief that with the advance of the comparatively small amount of cash necessary to finance the liquidation of the companies' inventories and with a careful supervision over such liquidation by representatives of the creditors, creditors may more reasonably expect to receive substantially full payment of their claims than would be the case if court proceedings should now intervene and compel an immediate conversion of assets into cash at forced sale.

JEOPARDIZE CHANCES.

"They believe that forced sale through court proceedings would result in a great sacrifice of values and a corresponding loss to creditors. They have also advised your committee that in their opinion the appointment of a receiver at the present time would jeopardize the chances of satisfactorily disposing of the tax situation.

"Your committee is glad to report that at its suggestion Mr. Long has now employed Messrs. Caswell & Woods to take general charge of the affairs of his companies with the end in view of conserving assets for the companies and of accomplishing as prompt a liquidation of indebtedness as circumstances permit.

"It seems obvious that the creditors should be kept in close touch with the affairs of the companies during this process of liquidation and that it should be carried on with their advice and under their supervision.

"Under these circumstances it is the opinion of your committee that the interests of the two classes of creditors—secured, and unsecured—can be better served by two committees—one representing the secured creditors only, and the other representing the unsecured creditors only, the two committees co-operating to the full extent that their interests permit—than by a single committee such as the present one, composed of the representatives of both classes of creditors.

THE COMMITTEE.

"This committee will, therefore, cease to exist when it has mailed this report.

"In its place Wilbur W. Higgins of the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston, George E. Pierce of the National Shawmut Bank of Boston and John W. Bargfrede of the First National Bank of Brooklyn, N. Y., have undertaken to act as the secured creditors' committee, and T. M. Ragan of the American Credit Indemnity Co. of Boston, G. L. Margeson of the B. F. Goodrich Company and a third member, to be chosen, will act as the unsecured creditors' committee.

"Each of these committees is now engaged in the preparation of a creditors' agreement looking toward liquidation along the lines indicated in this report. It is anticipated that shortly copies of such agreements will be mailed to creditors for their assent.

"Wilbur W. Higgins, chairman, Old Colony Trust Company, of Boston; George E. Pierce, the National Shawmut Bank of Boston; Robert M. Falkenau, Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company, New York; T. M. Ragan, American Credit Indemnity Company, Boston; W. S. Shepard, Worcester Bank and Trust Company, Worcester, temporary creditors' committee."

Berlin Cuts off All Aid to Jobless in the Ruhr

Dusseldorf, Nov. 30.—The German government announced today that all allowance for the occupied territories stood suspended from December 2, after which the municipalities would not be repaid for any advances they might make to the unemployed.

A similar announcement, made November 15, gave rise to such protest, but advanced 100,000,000 of the 200,000,000 not to put it into effect, but advanced 100,000,000 of the reichsmarks as relief for the workers. This sum now is exhausted.

Its inventory has been substantially liquidated.

PRINCES LEFT LONG TRAIL OF UNPAID BILLS

Two supposed scions of royalty, erstwhile students of Harvard University, have hurriedly left that institution and Cambridge, after one of them was expelled and both felt the pedestal upon which they had placed themselves to be rocking uncomfortably.

The best known of the two, "Prince Mike," or to give him his numerous names, Prince Michael Dmitri Obolenski Romanoff, alias Harry Ferguson, pretender to the imperial throne of Russia as the self-styled son of Alexander III.

SIAMESE 'PRINCE' GOES.

The other is M. Jamadais Patipan, a Siamese student and none other than the "cousin" to the King of Siam. His disappearance was revealed only after "Prince Mike's" departure.

Many are the persons, Harvard students and otherwise, who would very much like to confer with these exiled "monarchs." A Harvard professor has a little matter of a loan of $700 to settle with "Prince Mike." The only clew he can get to the destination of the prince is the information that the latter is supposed to have imparted to friends that he was going to Montreal on a hunting trip.

MANY OTHER CALLERS.

Numerous other callers appeared at the former address of the "prince," apparently equally anxious to see him. All acted mysteriously but none would give their business.

During their attendance at Harvard, both "princes" could be found among the principals in many of the wild revels and "sky limit" poker games that are the hobbies of some of the students.

"Prince Mike" entered the Harvard Graduate School on the strength of his story that he was a graduate of Magdalen College, Oxford. His expulsion, followed communication between Harvard authorities and those of Oxford.

He had posed as a refugee from Russia, whose life the Bolshevists were seeking, because he was the last of the Romanoffs, the natural son of Czar Alexander III.

Papitan, as far as could be learned, is the son of a wealthy Bankok rice merchant. He left behind him, it is alleged, many unpaid accounts with Greater Boston merchants.

At any rate, as far as Harvard is concerned, both "princes" have gone the way of many of their royal "kin" in the old world.

a quiet ceremony. The newlyweds left Chicago for the coast and will sail soon for some unknown Pacific destination.

McLaughlin is reputed to be a millionaire several times over. He is a son of the late W. E. McLaughlin, pioneer coffee merchant, and a Harvard man of the class of 1901. His elder brother, George D. McLaughlin, succeeds the father as head of the company.

The bridegroom in 1917, after the United States entered the World War, became major of cavalry, Officers Reserve corps. He also has been married previously, his first wife having been Helen Kinnear Wylie, daughter of William A. Wylie, of Baltimore, from whom he was divorced in 1910. He is a polo enthusiast.

Major McLaughlin went to France with the 332nd Field Artillery. Besides his North Michigan avenue home, he has a Lake Forest estate.

Desiring to avoid publicity, the major waited until 5:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon to go to the county clerk for a marriage license. He gas his age as 45 years and that of his bride at 29.

At Mr. McLaughlin's offices his secretary said he did not recall the name of the officiating minister at the marriage, which, he explained, was private and without a guest list. Twenty-four hours later the secretary said Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin departed for the West on their wedding journey.

Italian Nobleman May Be Mrs. Corey's No. 2

By GUGLIEMO EMANUEL.

Rome, Nov. 30.—Mrs. Mabel Gilman Corey, who recently divorced William Ellis Corey, American steel millionaire, may soon marry an Italian nobleman.

Mrs. Corey refused to confirm or deny the report. In an exclusive statement to International News Service she said:

"My future plans are still unsettled. I hope, however, to remain free to enjoy the liberty I now have. I divorced Mr. Corey, not through any disagreement, but because his affairs would not allow him to live abroad, while America's climate does not agree with my health."

Mrs. Corey denied she had any personal aversion for the United States as recently reported.

Italy appeals to Mrs. Corey on account of the warm, equable climate. This is the second winter she has spent here. She is looking for an apartment, meanwhile maintaining her chateau in France and her houses in New York and California.

"My wandering character must necessarily take me to America some time," she said.

Mrs. Corey, before her marriage to the American steel magnate in 1907, was a musical comedy actress on the American stage. Since her marriage to Corey she has spent most of her time in Europe.

HOLD BROTHER OF POLICEMEN AS BURGLAR

John Priestly, twenty-three, who claims his three brothers are police man, was found guilty by Judge Connelly in Brighton Court today of breaking and entering and larceny at the Hinds Laundry, No. 170 Harvard avenue and the meat market of William D. Adams, No. 162 Harvard avenue, Allston. In the former place he got $94.25, in the latter $1.20, police claim.

He pleaded not guilty to charges of breaking and entering with intent to rob the hardware store of David A. Plato, No. 150 Harvard avenue. The case was continued until Monday and sentence held up on the other two charges until then. His bail was fixed at $6,000.

Priestly's brother, Joseph, is on the Brookline force. Two others, he says, are in the Boston department, one at Station 5.

vestigation of the charges that the bank continued to accept deposits until the closing hour after bank officials knew the bank to be insolvent.

Judge Antonio Capotosto of Superior Court, will be asked by Bank Commissioner George H. Hewall to make the temporary receivership of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company permanent.

No arrests are planned at present.

EXAMINERS AT WORK.

In discussing the closing of the bank, Commissioner Newhall said there was no implication of dishonesty in the investigations so far. The bank accounts are still being gone over and the work will not be completed for several days, he said.

Numerous police guards have been placed inside and outside the building in anticipation of large crowds of depositors that are expected to gather.

OTHER BANKS SOLID.

Commissioner Newhall denied rumors that other Providence banks are on the verge of being closed and declared that with the exception of the closed bank, "every bank in Providence is as solid as a rock."

The bank was known in confidential circles to have been embarrassed for some time prior to the taking over of its affairs by the wealthy Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company last Monday.

Some of the State's "first families" are said to be represented in the officers and stockholders of the institution.

Commissioner Newhall said he had on several occasions discussed the matter of making loans with officers of the bank, but that the State banking laws do not empower him to go beyond recommending that certain loans are not sound.

SWEETHEART'S DEVOTION WINS FREEDOM FOR LIFER

KEPT VIGIL AT GATES OF PRISON

Through Her Pleadings With State Officials Plouffe Wins Coveted Parole

The first person who entered the mind of Raymond Plouffe, paroled murderer, when he stepped through the gates of Charlestown State Prison, a free man, was the woman whose constant devotion and faith through fourteen long years was largely responsible for his release—Miss Annie Churchill, of Newburyport.

To the sweetheart who had remained true to him during his weary years of imprisonment Plouffe first directed his steps. And together the couple spent a real Thanksgiving Day.

Raymond Plouffe

Now there is hope that the romance which was nearly ruined when Plouffe was sentenced to life imprisonment February 16, 1910, for second degree murder of Dr. Henry N. Stone, Newburyport dentist, may be rekindled anew.

WORKED UNCEASINGLY.

From the time that the jury returned the verdict against Plouffe until the day when his release was assured, Miss Churchill worked unceasingly in his behalf. The pledge that she made to herself in the court room when her sweetheart's fate was announced, she ever worked to fulfill.

And through the bitterness of his confinement it appears that Plouffe was conscious of his sweetheart's faith. For he was ever a model prisoner. He worked hard and when the World War came, he did his bit by investing his scanty savings in Liberty Bonds.

SENTENCE COMMUTED.

Plouffe's record spoke for itself inside the walls of the prison. Outside, he had a spokesman in the person of Miss Churchill. Soon his case came to the attention of the Governor and Council. On recommendation of the Board of Parole, the life term was commuted to eighteen years.

Thirteen years and nine months had been served. A parole was therefore in order. He has been set free. He will step into a lumber yard job Monday.

Meanwhile, he is occupied with wondering at the many changes that have been wrought in the outside world since his commitment. One that most amazed him when he first breathed the air of freedom was the great increase in automobile traffic.

BACK AS JAIL VISITOR

When he was free but a short while, his associations of more than a decade proved too strong a magnet for him and he returned to the prison which had been his home for so long. Standing beside Rev. M. J. Murphy, the prison chaplain, in the prison rotunda he saw 636 of his former mates go to Thanksgiving dinner.

Another of the many things that he saw for the first time in the long stretch of years was a real football tussle—that between Fitton and Pere Marquette Councils, K. of C.

WIFE IS DENIED JAZZ, TRIES TO END LIFE

Mrs. Mary Connors has flaming red hair.

Charles, her husband, is stubborn.

All of which leads up to a little argument the couple had in their apartment at No. 16 St. Germain street, Back Bay, over where they should eat Thanksgiving dinner.

"Let's go down town to a hotel where there's jazz," suggested Mary.

"Come on, the music will cheer you up," Mary persisted.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS.

"Well, I'm going down town."

"Go to any place you want. I'm going out."

And Charles, the stubborn, slammed the door of the apartment and departed, to have his turkey in peaceful surroundings.

An hour later Louis Manjoe, who occupies an apartment in the same house, smelled gas. Manjoe traced it to the Connors' apartment. He opened the door. Mrs. Connors was on the floor of her bedroom, unconscious. Gas was flowing from three gas jets. All the windows were closed.

KISS AND MAKE UP.

"You spoiled my Thanksgiving," said Mary, feebly, when she saw her husband.

"I'm sorry, Mary," said Charles. "When you get well we'll go downtown where there's jazz and have our Thanksgiving dinner together."

Dublin, Nov. 30.—An interesting point in connection with the new national loan—whether its service would be in Irish or English currency—was settled by an official announcement that interest and principal would be paid out in English sterling.

TURKEYS GO FOR SONG IN LAST MARKET HOUR

As a result of Wednesday's debacle, the turkey market was a puny and pitiful thing today.

Few birds were on sale in the Faneuil Hall district, and it was evident that the dealers had learned a lesson.

Many marketmen were said to have taken heavy losses as a result of the sharp break in prices Wednesday, and to have suffered even more when the bottom fell out of the market Wednesday night.

According to Samuel Holmes, it was birds from Texas and Oklahoma which caused the riot.

"The market was glutted with Texas and Oklahoma stuff," said Mr. Holmes, "with the result that dealers were willing to take almost anything. Minnesota and other Northern birds brought good prices however, and anything over ten pounds we could get forty cents for. We didn't have a single turkey left Wednesday night and as far as I know there wasn't a good sized bird in the market district.

"There were plenty of small ones however, and in the suburbs, I understand a good many of the dealers were stuck.

"There last fifteen minutes Wednesday night, however, the bottom fell out of the market and there was something in the nature of a riot. Of course a large number of the dealers were caught, as nearly everyone of them was forced to buy ahead of time. In our case half of our stuff goes Monday and Tuesday, and as the market on Monday was 40 cents you can see there was a chance for a loss. Then on Tuesday the break came and there were a lot of scurrying to get under cover."

Local dealers refused to hazard a guess as to what the market would be at Christmas time, but it was believed there would be no era of high prices.

BOTTLE THROWN FROM WINDOW INJURES MAN

Struck on the head by a bottle which was thrown from a window at C street and Broadway, South Boston, Coleman McDonough, of No. 8 St. James street, Norwood, wandered around the streets until he came to Station 12. There, police were on the verge of arresting him as a drunk when they noticed a deep cut on his scalp. Instead of being taken to a cell he was rushed to the City Hospital where a lacer-

LIMITED, GOING AT FAST CLIP, IS WRECKED

Steubenville, O., Nov. 30.—Eastbound Pennsylvania passenger train, the Gotham Limited, St. Louis to New York, was wrecked at the east end of Gould's tunnel, about seven miles east of this city, at 6:50 a. m. today.

Six of the nine coaches, including sleeping cars, left the rails, but none of them turned over and according to railroad officials none of the passengers was seriously hurt. The wreck was caused by a broken rail. The train, traveling fifty miles an hour, was clearing the tunnel when the third car of the train struck the bad rail. It left the track and those behind were also pulled off the track. The cars ran along the ties for about 100 yards, but remained upright, although the trucks were pulled from under the last three Pullmans, and they skidded along the tracks.

The fact that it was an all-steel train undoubtedly saved the lives of a hundred or more passengers it was said.

"Cohens" Leading "Smiths" in N. Y. Directory

New York, Nov. 30.—The "Smiths" have lost out as leaders in New York city. In the directory of that city, just published, the "Cohens" lead all names with 65,000 tabulated, while the "Smiths," long leaders of the list, come second with 58,000.

2 DEAD, 4 HURT, IN AUTO SPILL

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 30 (I.N.S.)—Two are dead and four injured, two probably fatally, as the result of a holiday motor accident here caused by a car skidding and upsetting on a hill.

Miss Sarah Ewald and Mrs. Agatha Hoffman, sisters, of Cromwell, Conn., died in a hospital. Miss Anna Ewald, Anthony Ewald, driver of the car, Peter Coyle and William Dowling, were the injured. The last two are in a critical condition.

Mrs. Hoffman was the mother of eight children.

PORTLAND VETS PLAN TO RAID KLAN RALLY

Portland, Nov. 30.—Plans to break up the Ku Klux Klan pre-election rally in City Hall tonight have been made by the United World War Veterans, under the leadership of Edward J. Quinn, a former army captain.

The veterans are aroused at the failure of Mayor Chaplin to keep promise that he would not permit further Klan meetings in the City Hall.

According to announcements, King Kleagle F. Eugene Farnsworth is to give a lecture on "Americanism." It is believed, however, that the real purpose of the meeting is to arouse enthusiasm for the Klan ticket at Monday's city election.

Ku Klux Klan election propaganda is flooding the city. Five Klan candidates for Council, seven for the School Committee and candidates for minor offices are recommended on cards distributed through the city.

Klansmen have announced they are seeking the defeat of four Catholic candidates for city offices.

Kindness Will End Unrest, Declares Rockefeller, Jr.

New York, Nov. 30.—Service first; profits second.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

That is how John D. Rockefeller, Jr., summed up his philosophy of business. He declared that kindness would end industrial unrest.

The Near East Relief asks that a frugal dinner be eaten next Sunday and the difference in money contributed toward the feeding of orphans in Greece, Syria and Armenia.

POLICE PROBERS LEAD CLEANUP OF N. Y. SHOWS

New York, Nov. 30.—Concerted action by seven agencies now acting independently to stop improper shows in New York, is sought by the Police Play Investigating Committee. In an attempt to organize all the agencies into one body, Deputy Police Commissioner Leach, chairman of the committee, has called a meeting of the groups for next week.

"Our investigation," said Commissioner Leach, "has proved to us that the stage is being corrupted this season to an unprecedented extent with its revues and unclean dramas.

"With all the organizations working independently to correct this evil we will not make much progress. United, however, I believe we can accomplish something in a hurry."

The organizations engaged in a campaign for a cleaner stage are the police committee, the Social Service Commission of the Episcopal Church, the New York Federation of Churches, the Play Jury Committee of the Theatrical interests, the Methodist Episcopal Board of Temperance Prohibition and Public Morals, the Young Committee of the Society for the Prevention of Crime and the Society for the Suppression of Vice.

PARDONED GERMAN SPY SAILS FOR HOME

New York, Nov. 30.—Pardoned by President Coolidge and freed from a life sentence at Leavenworth, Lothar Witzke, the only German spy convicted in the United States during the World War, was deported on the Hamburg-American liner Albert Ballin.

Five years of prison life appeared to have left no traces on the countenance of the former spy, for he was robust and ruddy, and looked 32 rather than 39 years old.

JESSE POMEROY ENJOYS 64TH BIRTHDAY

He spent his birthday looking over letters and seventy-five post-cards that had been sent him, arranging half a dozen bouquets in his cell and eating a Thanksgiving dinner with 838 other prisoners. The dinner consisted of pork chops, boiled onions, mashed potatoes, squash, home-made mince pie, coffee and a cigar apiece.

Jesse has been behind the bars forty-six years. He spent forty years in solitary confinement, and was a gray-haired man when, in 1917, his status was mitigated to permit him to eat and attend religious services and entertainments in the company of other prisoners.

The case of Jesse Pomeroy was notorious not more because of the atrocities conceived by his perverted mind, than by reason of the severity of his punishment.

Gifts of gold pieces were received by Pomeroy on his birthday. One, $10, came from Colonel Walter Scott of New York, and another from Rev. John W. McMahon, of St. Mary's Church, Charlestown.

CAPPER TELLS PLAN TO AID FARMERS

Washington, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—The interests of American farmers will be amply protected in the coming session of Congress under a tentative program of legislation drafted today by leaders of the two congressional farm blocs.

Revision of tax laws shifting more of the tax burden from the poor to the rich and heavy reduction in transportation costs will be the chief planks in this program, according to Senator Arthur Capper, Republican, of Kansas, chairman of the eSnate farm bloc. He said the program includes:

1—Revision of tax laws with the reduction of taxes on incomes under $10,000 as the immediate goal, and the placing of heavy taxes on all inheritances and those securities now listed as tax-exempt.

2—Partial revision of the Esch-Cummins railroad act, with repeal of the so-called rate-guarantee clause and such legislative action as is necessary to bring lower freight rates.

3—Creation of an agriculture export corporation probably with a capitalization of $100,000,000 to expand export trade.

SHOOTING OF REVERE MAN IS MYSTERY

Revere and Lynn police are investigating the mysterious shooting of Augustine Russo, thirty-five years old, No. 30 Columbus road, Revere, who is in a dangerous condition in the Lynn Hospital with a bullet wound in his abdomen.

Russo was taken to the hospital in the automobile of his brother-in-law, Orazio Distefano, of the same address, who concurred in Russo's story that the wound was self-inflicted, accidentally, while hunting woodchucks in Revere.

Revere police first learned of the shooting from the Lynn police, who in turn were told of the shooting by the Lynn Hospital authorities.

Until a late hour police had failed to find any evidence to corroborate the statements of the two men. Whether the wound was inflicted with a revolver or rifle is not known. Revere police failed to obtain a statement from Russo.

HUNT WIDENS FOR SLAYERS OF BANK MEN

New York, Nov. 30 (Universal).—The hunt for the trio of murder syndicate members who are still outside the police dragnet assumed a National-wide aspect when twenty New York detectives were dispatched to as many different American cities. The three uncaptured bandits are the ones directly chargable with the murder of William S. Barlow and William H. McLaughlin, Brooklyn Bank messengers, in the opinion of the police. Two of the bandits did the actual slaying and the third drove the car which carried them to safety.

At the same time another member of the syndicate, Nicholas Luciano, became thoroughly frightened and embittered at his talkative pals, and talked straight out for all he was worth. Confronted with Tony Pantano, the dreamy-eyed bank clerk, and identified positively as one of the stick-up fellowship which Pantano had seen in the raided Williamsbridge road house, Luciano leaped to his feet and accused Pantano of being the prime instigator of the killing.

"You dirty rat," he screamed. "What are you doing, squealing? You are the guy who told us what a cinch it would be to crack that bank down in Brooklyn.

"Didn't you tell us when we told you it would be too risky to stick the bank up the way you said that it would be a cinch to grab some of the payrolls which were being carried out of the bank? Remember that you told us that every Friday a $15,000 payroll went out to the Fortunamills on Underhill avenue. What do you mean trying to put this thing on us?"

45 OF CLARK FAMILY DINE IN TOWN HALL

Hampstead, N. H. Nov. 30.—When Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin W. Clark, 68 and 63 years old, respectively, glanced about the Thanksgiving board, at which they held the place of honor, they beheld every member of their immediate family—10 sons and daughters, with their husbands and wives, and 32 grandchildren, 45 persons in all.

It was decided several days ago that the reunion would be too large even for the commodious family homestead. So Walter F. Clark, one of the three sons, janitor of the town hall, hired that building for the occasion.

PIANO TOPPLES FROM TRUCK, KILLS MAN

Lawrence, Nov. 30.—No police action will be taken against James A. Hyde, truckman who was in charge of the truck which figured in the killing of Alfred La France, 43-year old truck helper. Hyde is held blameless in the accident which occurred when the truck swerving as it turned the corner of Berkeley and Park streets, caused a piano to topple off. La France was thrown at the same time and the piano falling on him crushed his skull.

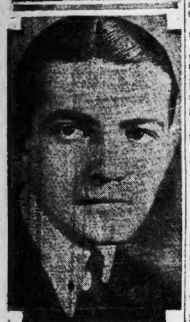
Holiday Reunion



RICHARD BARTHELMESS

BARTHELMESS GIVES WIFE A SURPRISE

Here's to good old Boston
Where Thanksgiving's very clubby.
With turkey and the fixins
And, to top it off, my hubby.—M. H.

By ELEANOR EARLY.

Mary Hay ran her fingers frantically through her slick black bob. It was 8 in the morning and the little lady had just opened her eyes. Chloe, the colored maid, stood at the bed.

Yoah bath's ready, Missy Mary,' said Chloe.

But Mary only tore her slick black bob.

"What's Thanksgiving without a husband?" she demanded. "I don't want any bath, Chloe, and I don't want any breakfast, and I don't want anything—but just Dick and little Mary. And I'm going to lie right here and cry until matinee time."

Then Mary put her head down in the pillows, and cried.

"Go ahead out with Sam, Chloe," she ordered. "You're lucky to have a man. Me—I haven't anything. But just a husband in New York and a baby that doesn't know she has a mother."

SORROW TURNED TO JOY

Boo hoo. And Mary mussed her bob all up.

And then (it was just like a play) there was a knock at the door. And the door flew open. And there was—Dick Barthelmess!

"Mary!" he said.

And "Dick!" she said.

And Chloe just melted away. And there was one of those wonderful kisses like they barred from the screen. Then Mary cried some more, as women do when they cry for joy.

And when she stopped, "How's the baby, Dick?" she asked.

"Beautiful," said Dick. "She sent you a kiss."—and he delivered it.

The Barthelmesses are just like honeymooners—though they've been married going on four years, and little Mary Hay junior is ten months old. When Mary had to tear herself away for the matinee, Dick took her up to the theatre, where she is playing the title role in "Mary Jane McKane."

Then, while Miss Hay was dressing for the first act of the show, Dick smuggled Barthelmess onto the stage, his first appearance by the way on the legitimate stage, and induced him to appear as one of the thirtyten in the thirtyte scene. His wife was given the surprise of her life when she saw him.

"Fine!" he told his wife at the end of the show, when she asked him how he liked it. "I'm crazy about it, and you're adorable!"

PARTED FOR LONG.

"We haven't seen each other for so long," explained Mary, as she removed the black from her eyebrows and wiped the rouge from her cheeks. "Dick won't have time to run over again before I leave Boston the middle of December."

"And then almost as soon as Mary hits New York, I'll have to go to Italy," fumed Dick. "We're going to film 'Romeo and Juliet' over there you know—Lillian Gish and I."

"But I'll be playing in New York for a little while, Dear, before you sail," consoled Mary. "We open Christmas Eve, you know."

"Yes, and you'll have to play a Christmas matinee," grumbled Dick," and the baby and I won't see you at all."

"Oh, I've a week off, honey," announced Mary, "A whole week from the time I hit that blessed apartment of ours until we open on the 26th. And I'm going to have the most wonderful time—buying Christmas presents for you and little Mary—and wheeling her out every day through Central Park."

Mary turned to the reporter, who was listening in.

FOND OF INFANTS

"I'm thoroughly domesticated," she announced, "and I think the biggest thrill in life is to push a baby carriage with your own baby in it. My Mary's 10 months old, and the sweetest thing that ever lived. It's hard to tear myself away from her, but I reckon every girl ought to have a bit of a career. I plan to stay on the stage for a few years more, and then I'll settle down."

"Settle down nothing!" exploded Dick. 'I hate girls who settle down. You'll do nothing of the sort."

And there you are. Will Mary? Or won't she?

Barthelmess is a bit oversensitive, though Mary seems to like it. Last night he wore a gray suit and a striped collegiate tie, purple and gray. He needed a shave a little bit, but he was very dashing and very handsome.

LIKE TWO CHILDREN.

"Hurry up, Mary," he ordered, as she dallied with cosmetics and struggled into her street clothes. "Hurry up, Mary. We haven't got all day."

"Yes, dear," said Mary sweetly. "Yes, dear. I'm hurrying."

And in a few minutes she was all dressed and off they dashed, hand in hand, like a couple of kids.

RARE CHINESE GOODS ON SALE AT HOVEY'S

Rare jade from Fukin, an exquisite ivory from the city of porcelain, Nagova, select Marnkl bronzes, the tunic of a Ming emperor, art treasures from old Nippon, all the finest art of the Orient, will be offered to the New England public in the "Vantine Gift Shop" in the C. F. Hovey Company store.

The entire holiday stock in this "House of the Orient," representing more than $100,000 in rare treasures and antiques from the East, was brought to Boston in special autos with heavily armed guards from A. A. Vantine's of New York, world-famed importers of rare Oriental goods.

Vantine artides, under supervision of specially trained men from the New York firm, were placed on sale today on the fourth floor at Hovey's.

Particular care was taken in selecting the merchandise to include museum and collectors' pieces rich in the lore of the older dynasties in China, Japan and India. Each article offered for sale is backed by the name of A. A. Vantine, which is sufficient for the discriminating connoisseur.

FIRST XMAS SEALS SOLD TO DR. MAHONEY

HEALTH COMMISSIONER AND ALICE A'HERN

Dr. Francis X. Mahoney buying the first set of Christmas seals to be sold this year from Alice A'Hern at the Prendergast Preventorium.

Alice A'Hern, the smallest of the group of girls at the Prendergast Preventorium, sold Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, the health commissioner, the first set of Christmas seals to be sold this year.

Dr. Mahoney was accosted by Alice, whose home is in Brighton, while he was making an inspection of the Preventorium. Maintenance of the camp depends upon the proceeds from the sale of Christmas seals, and all Alice saw was an opportunity to sell seals.

In buying the seals, Dr. Mahoney expressed hearty approval of the methods of the Preventorium, "which if they could be generally adopted would be an exceedingly powerful factor in the fight against tuberculosis."

The seals will be on sale till New Year's Day in Boston and similar seals will be on sale throughout the United States.

Hotel and Resort Chat

OF INTEREST TO CALIFORNIA TOURISTS.

Probably 75 per cent. of the requests received by our Hotel and Travel Bureau these days are for California train, steamship and hotel reservations. These transcontinental tourists will be interested in knowing that one of San Francisco's most popular houses is being remodeled and redecorated. This is the well known Hotel Whitcomb, and the improvements include the redecoration of the roof garden, remodeling of the ballroom and the addition of many luxurious rugs and rare paintings. One novel feature will be a wire enclosed runway and kennel for the housing of the dogs which accompany guests. The Whitcomb will be reopened about December 1.

ANOTHER BOND FOR HARTFORD.

Plans are being drawn by New York architects for the building of the Enlarged Greater Bond in Hartford, Ct., a 320-room addition to the present group of Bonds in Hartford. Besides the sleeping accommodations, the new building will provide dining room facilities for 500, also private banquet rooms and several shops. A novel feature will be a civic club dining room which will be available for the numerous luncheons, dinners and entertainments given by Hartford clubs.

The Enlarged Greater Bond should do much towards solving Harry Bond's problem of how to accommodate the ever increasing demand for Bond hospitality.

"GREETER'S GUIDE" POPULAR WITH TOURISTS.

NO PROFITEERING AT ASTOR OR COMMODORE.

In spite of reports that all New York hotels took advantage of the demand for hotel accommodations over the last week-end, due to the Army and Navy game, by raising their prices, the two hotels which were used as general headquarters of the Army and Navy teams, the Hotel Commodore and the Hotel Astor, stated that a definite reduction in rate was given to officers as well as students of the two academies. A big reduction was made at the Commodore to the Navy team and its coaches, and at the Astor practically the same standard of reduction was made to the Army eleven and the Army officers. The Hotels Biltmore, Belmont, Ausonia, Murray Hill and Pennsylvania also denied that they had increased their rates.

WOMAN DIES IN CRASH AFTER SHE KILLS MAN

Houston, Nov. 30.—Mrs. C. O. Fuller, wealthy Houston widow, struck Fred Hickman with her motor car here, hurled him 30 feet and killed him, and three minutes later drove her machine head-on into a street car and was herself almost instantly killed.

Several witnesses of the spectacle said Mrs. Fuller, apparently unnerved, was driving her car through the crowded street at 50 miles an hour. She swerved toward the centre of the boulevard to avoid hitting an automobile and hurled straight into the on-coming car. Apparently she made no effort to apply the brakes.

The street car was loaded with passengers, but none was seriously injured.

Veteran Chief to Retire

WIPED FEET OF TURKEY FLOCK, SAVED LIVES

Plymouth, N. H., Nov. 30.—Marooned for two days on the island formed of his small farm by floodwaters of the Pemigewasset River, "Turkey Jim," Plymouth's only town character, wiped the feet of 150 turkeys every half hour day and night. He saved his flock, and now, as Plymouth figures, "Turkey Jim" is rich.

For years "Turkey Jim," a recluse, whose real name is as much a mystery as "Turkey Jim" himself, has been an object of local pity. Charitable souls have given him Christmas baskets for years.

Last January, with the few hundred dollars he had saved, "Turkey Jim" invested every cent of his life's savings in turkeys. People said he couldn't raise them—anybody knows that turkeys die when their feet get wet, and look where Jim's farm is!

When the rains came, "Turkey Jim" kept his turkeys' feet dry with an old Turkish towel. A rescue party sent to the island farm for the recluse returned without him. "Turkey Jim" would not leave his turkeys. Townspeople sat at their windows all night, waiting for the rising river to cover the island and wash away "Turkey Jim's" house. But the waters receded. "Turkey Jim" sold his turkeys before the market broke at the peak of prices. And today, as Plymouth figures, "Turkey Jim" is rich.

SAVE 10 MILLION FOR PEOPLE BY SELLING COAL

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 30 (C.N.S.).—Governor Charles W. Bryan today estimated that his plan of supplying communities in this State with coal at "fair prices" through the company he organized would save the people from $10,000,000 to 15,000,000 a year.

Not only through directly supplying 139 towns and cities with soft coal from Illinois and Colorado at from $8 to 9 a ton is he saving money to the consumer, he said, but retail dealers whom he accused of profiteering have been compelled to reduce prices to meet this competition, the Governor said.

FIGHTS RETAILERS.

Governor Bryan charged that dealers and even mine operators have sought to handicap the State coal company he organized, from obtaining coal, from getting prompt shipments and in other ways, but he is fighting obstacles vigorously and is claiming a large measure of success.

The Governor's fight is mainly directed against the retailers. He admires them, not only in this State, but throughout the country, of banding together to obtain excessive profits. Because he operated a successful municipal coal yard in Lincoln when he was a city commissioner, he has had experience in the coal business.

Since there is no provision under the State constitution under which the State could run such a business he did not organize the company as a State enterprise.

He buys coal direct from the mine or a wholesaler who guarantees continuous supplies and then sells this coal to municipalities, public committees or groups such as the "Farmers' Union," the State Grange Co-operative Association and others. Labor organizations or groups of individuals who pool their needs also are supplied.

$2 ON EACH TON.

The Governor pays from $3.25 to $3.50 for Illinois lump coal and $3 for Colorado lignite. The freight rate from Illinois to eastern and central Nebraska is from $3 to $4 a ton, and from Colorado to western Nebraska about the same. The cost is thus from $6.50 to $7.25 a ton delivered at the depot.

Out of a small service fee, unpretentious offices are maintained here and two employes paid. The Governor has recommended that committees add no more than $2 to each ton to provide against shortage, shrinkage and similar expenses, including delivery.

According to the Governor retailers were charging from $12 to $14 a ton when he entered the coal business. His competition forced an average reduction of $3.50 a ton by these retailers.

WHITE TEETH ARE NOT DUE TO WATER

If the teeth of Cambridge school children are whiter and sounder lately than they used to be, it's not the pure water of Cambridge that did it, but recent sessions in the chairs of Boston dentists, according to Harold De Witt Cross, director of the Forsythe Dental Infirmary, ex-professor of the Harvard Dental School, and leading member of the Massachusetts Dental Society, Boston Society for Dental Improvement, and the Odontological Society of America.

WOMAN EDUCATOR SMOKES, SAYS SISTERS SHOULD FOLLOW

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 30.—"Why shouldn't women smoke? I smoke myself in the privacy of my room."

This was the answer Miss Olive M. Jones of Newark, N. J., president of the National Education Association, gave when asked if she believed women teachers should smoke. She is attending the convention of the New York State Teachers' Association here.

"Hundreds of New York teachers smoke," she added. "A teacher is a human being. Her conduct is governed by her ideals of womanly dignity and she does nothing to violate this when she smokes. It is entirely a matter of individual taste and no cause for criticism.

SAVES WOMAN, CRASHES FIRE TRUCK TO WALL

In order to save the life of an elderly woman, who had stepped directly in the path of Ladder 17, Ladderman Frederick B. Seitz, in charge of the fire apparatus, deliberately sent his motor crashing head-on into the three-story brick building at No. 200 Stuart street and Broadway.

In this heroic effort to avert a Thanksgiving Day tragedy Seitz was severely injured and six other firemen slightly injured.

LEG CRUSHED.

Seitz suffered a crushed leg when the front of the truck buckled up. He was then hurled to the street as were the other firemen. He was sent to the City Hospital where it is believed the leg may have to be amputated.

Ladderman George T. Magoun was thrown twenty feet and suffered a broken arm and multiple cuts and bruises.

Captain John F. Watson, Lieutenant Timothy F. Donovan, Tillerman Joseph V. O'Donnell, Ladderman Henry C. Syberts and Edward J. Gaughlan escaped with bruises.

AVOIDS COLLISION.

Besides saving the life of the woman, Seitz had in mind avoiding a collision with Engine 3, which had turned from Broadway into Stuart street, just ahead of him. It was here the woman stepped out. Only by inches did Seitz miss the engine.

Seitz's act was commended by both Commissioner Glynn and Chief Tabor. "To avoid hitting the woman, it was necessary to crash into the engine or the building. Seitz chose the building and used good judgment," declared the chief.

BEAUTIES ARE PICKED FOR ZIEGFELD

New York, Nov. 30.—Alice Delysia of "Topics of 1923" has found "all that is loveliest in young America." She attended the beauty contest at Madison Square Garden and watched while those august individuals made their selections for prizes from the eighty-eight contestants. Then she appeared before Lee Shubert with four of the young women in tow.

The four, she explained, were in her opinion the real prize winners. Three of them, she suggested, should be placed with her in "Topics," which is playing at the Broadhurst Theatre. The fourth, whose name is Eugenia Gilbert and whose place of nativity is Los Angeles, Miss Delysia has taken under her artistic guardianship.

Mr. Shubert, of course, agreed with Miss Delysia in everything. The three who will join her in "Topics" are Miss Mary Fogarty of Butte, Miss Zoe Yake of Spokane and Miss Alva King of Atlantic City. Miss Gilbert accepted Mlle. Delysia's offer of guardianship. The four were with Miss Delysia at the Broadhurst Theatre, three of them preparing to go into "Topics."

Miss Delysia said that she plans to see to Miss Gilbert's stage education, that she will take her to Paris and later will sponsor her in a musical comedy or revue.

"I went to the beauty contest merely out of curiosity," she explained. "The four young women whom I selected I found very lovely. They were so beautiful that I wanted them to be happy, too, especially on Thanksgiving Day. So I did my best for them."

THIRD ROMANCE FOR FORMER LILY OELRICHS

New York, Nov. 30.—A third romance in the life of Lily Oelrichs, formerly Duchess Natalie of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, and Mrs. Peter Martin of San Francisco, is reported in dispatches from Berlin.

Lily Oelrichs.

She has appeared in Berlin following a debut appearance of six months, and rumor has it that she will wed the Marquis De Ricci, an Italian nobleman, with whom her name has been linked in both Europe and America.

As Lily Oelrichs, daughter of the late Charles M. Oelrichs, she was one of the beauties of New York. In 1901 she was married here to Peter Martin, San Francisco millionaire. After his death she became the wife of Duke Henry. A divorce followed. The duke is now reported to be living with his second wife in obscurity in Italy. She was Carola De Alera, a wealthy widow.

FIGHTS FOR TAX ON ESTATES, HER OWN EXEMPT

London, Nov. 30.—Curious to learn how the Countess of Warwick regards herself and family in the light of the capital levy which she, as the Labor-Socialist candidate for Warwick and Leamington entirely upholds, the Anti-Laborite Daily Mail sent a reporter to interview her ladyship at once of her country mansions.

The interviewer found the countess seated in a paneled hall surrounded by costly furniture, brica-brac and armor. She was wearing a pearl necklace.

Countess of Warwick.

She genially admitted what is publicly known, namely, that the encumbered Warwick estates have been transferred for the lifetimes of her husband and herself to a limited liability company, whose capital, as belonging to a company rather than a landividual, would be exempt from the capital levy according to the explanatory statements published in behalf of her political party.

Thus, says the Daily Mail, it would be impossible to derive any revenue for the state from the 15,674 acres of land and other property held in the name of the Earl of Warwick, relieved of death duties by life insurance policies, will pass unencumered to their son, Lord Brooke.

To the remarks of the interviewer on this point, the countess naively replied: "Even if the estate were not vested in a company, they could not be touched, being protected by the law of entail."

Another titled landowner, the Duke of Athol, is in a less happy position, according to his own statement.

Speaking at Dalkeith in behalf of his wife, who is the Conservative candidate for Kinkrass, the duke was interrupted by a heckler, who shouted: "We are going to take your money."

To this the duke replied that he had no money to take and that he was so poor he could not afford to live in his own mansion; he and his wife were dwelling in a small cottage.

HOOCH SELLER NEAR SCHOOL IS SOUGHT

Lawrence, Nov. 30.—A widespread search for a bootlegger who is claimed to have sold "Johnny Walker" whiskey from the back of a truck near the Oliver School is being conducted. The whiskey sold for $20 a case in broad daylight, Thomas Dunn of Bennington street stated, and showed the police four cases as proof. He will appear in District Court this morning to answer to a charge of drunkenness. Relatives say Dunn spent over $700 since Monday on liquor. Dunn was advised by authorities to have the liquor analyzed before he started to drink it.

FILM ACTRESS DANGEROUSLY BURNED

New York, Nov. 30.—Martha Mansfield, moving picture actress, is suffering dangerous burns in a San Antonio hospital, according to advices received here. Miss Mansfield's dress caught fire while she was on location. Before other members of the company could extinguish the flames, the screen star was seriously burned.

Miss Mansfield jumped from the Ziegfeld "Follies" into the movies. Before she was a "Follies" beauty, however, she was in the chorus of "The Peasant Girl," with Florence Lawlor, the Flo Leeds in the Stillman divorce case. She asserted at the time of the divorce proceedings she had been one of Florence Lawlor's best friends.

Miss Mansfield has had several important roles in recent motion picture productions. One of her latest was in "Polish and Perlmutter." She was also leading woman for John Barrymore in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

BISHOP DENOUNCES IRISH HUNGER STRIKE

Cork, Nov. 30.—Bishop Cohalan in explaining his reason for his refusal to sanction the rites of the church for Dennis Barry, who died at Newbridge prison as a result of a hunger strike, declared that Barry deliberately took his own life. "He died in that determination and without proof of repentance," said the bishop.

Five Predictions of French Seeress Proved True

Paris, Nov. 30.—Mme. Deux Thebes, the pseudonym under which a woman professing to be a seeress hides her identity, can claim five realized predictions to her credit for the month of October. Here they are:

1. A change of government in an Oriental nation. (Turkey has just been made a republic.)

2. Death of a noted French writer. (Emile Bergera: died during the month.)

3. Death of a British statesman who played a great role in the war. (Bonar Law answers that description.)

4. Germany would abandon passive resistance. (Germany has done so.)

In addition, contrary to the opinion of all the race track fiends of Paris, Mme. Deux Thebes wrote that Epinard would arrive second in the Cambridgeshire. He did.

AMERICAN IS FIRST WOMAN GLAND PATIENT

Paris, Nov. 30 (Universal Cable)—Carrie King, who for years has been the Paris correspondent of a New York morning newspaper, has entered, it is stated, the clinic of Dr Serge Voronoff for the first experiment in female rejuvenation.

Carrie, who is fifty-nine, has for years been a character in the Paris Latin quarter. She is distinguished as the woman who told Georges Clemenceau at a "war banquet" at which he presided: "You are an old man; you know nothing about women."

According to what Carrie has lately told her friends, she has been feeling badly. She explained that "old age is at last getting a grip on my bones."

Three months ago Dr. Voronoff suggested that she be the first American woman patient. She demurred, but has gone to the clinic of the Russian doctor, determined as she told her intimates, to "be rejuvenated or die."

London, Nov. 30—How Great Britain lags behind the United States and other nations in the science of aviation was the theme of Major Mayo, in charge of the designs department of the Air Ministry during the World War, in addressing the Royal Aeronautical Society.

The major said the fastest British pursuit machine was slower by thirty miles an hour than that of any other nation, and if British planes were called to war it was a point fact they would never get into a fight at all.

JUDGE JENNEY OF SUPREME COURT DEAD

Justice Charles F. Jenney of the Massachusetts Supreme Court died at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital following an illness of two weeks. Justice Jenney was taken to the hospital Monday to undergo an operation for an intestinal disorder. It was believed he would recover.

Justice Charles F. Jenney

Justice Jenney lived at No. 100 Gordon avenue, Hyde Park. He was born in Middleboro in 1861, and was graduated from Boston University in 1883.

He was promoted in the Republican party in Hyde Park, where he lived the greater part of his life and where he was town counsel before Hyde Park was annexed to Boston. Early in his political career he served in both branches of the State Legislature.

In 1909 he was appointed to the Superior bench by Governor Draper, and in 1919 Governor Coolidge elevated him to the Supreme Court.

For more than twenty years, Justice Jenney was a lecturer in Boston University Law School and at the same time he was kept busy with a wide private practice.

He was a member of the Republican Club, the Abstract Club, the historical societies of Hyde Park, Dedham and Canton, and also of the Nuttal and Norfolk clubs. He was a director of the Hyde Park Cooperative Bank and a past president of the Boston University Law School Alumni Association.

Justice Jenney is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mildred and Mrs. Edie Jenney Pearce, the wife of Dr. G. G. Pearce of New Bedford.

The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon from the Jenney home in Hyde Park, with services at the Hyde Park Congregational Church at 2.30 p. m.

Former Boston Belle Now Reigns in Baltimore, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

WHEN Margaret Bennett lived in Boston, she was one of the most popular girls of her set. No Vincent Club show was complete without her, and her varied accomplishments enlivened many a charity function.

Now that she's Mrs. Tom Cottman of Baltimore, she is quite as popular as ever. In fact, among the choice circle in which she moves she reigns as undisputed leader.

Her name stands out prominently among the sponsors for the supper dances which are about the most exclusive functions on the Oriole City's social calendar. They are primarily for members of the younger-married set, though some of the girls who have been out a season or so also receive the much-coveted "bids." The debutantes are not invited, which is just as well, perhaps, as the poor dears have more than enough affairs on their calendars.

ALSO known as a "thorough good sport" is Mrs. Cottman's sister, who, until last June, was Helen Bennett.

Mrs. Bulkeley L. Wells. (White Studio)

Her marriage to Bulkeley Livermore Wells drew a fashionable throng to the Protestant Episcopal Church at Garrison Forest, just outside Baltimore. The wedding reception was held at "Westburn," the country place of Mr. and Mrs. Cottman in exclusive Green Spring Valley.

The one-time Helen Bennett, who had been making her home with Sister Margaret for the past two years, is the youngest of Stephen Howe Bennett's daughters. Like Mrs. Cottman, she, too, won considerable renown as a Vincent Club performer, and was one of the best and most swagger "leading men" the club ever had.

Following an extensive wedding journey abroad, Mr. and Mrs. Wells are now making their home in New York, where the former's business interests now keep him. Formerly Mr. Wells lived in Boston.

Mrs. Edward Cunningham (Gere Photo)

Another sister is Mrs. Edward Cunningham (Elizabeth Bennett), who was once president of the Vincent Club, I believe. As the Cunninghams are now established in their new home in Providence, Mr. Bennett's trio of daughters seem to be pretty well scattered.

Mrs. Alfred Perkins Dix of New York is giving the affair in honor of her debutante granddaughter, Miss Lorraine Leeson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ainsworth Leeson of Commonwealth avenue. Preceding the ball, there will be a dinner for the ushers and a number of the buds.

Mrs. Tom Cottman (Margaret Bennett), formerly of Boston, is now a leader among the younger-married set of Baltimore.

'KIDNAPED' PAIR ONLY ON VISIT TO RELATIVE

The prayers of two Somerville mothers were answered on Thanksgiving Day when their daughters, Miss Mary Sullivan, nineteen years old, of Glen street, Somerville, and Miss Lillian Tobin, eighteen years old, of No. 110 Pearl street, Somerville, who were feared to have been kidnaped, returned to their homes.

Lillian Tobin

The girls, it was learned, had gone to the home of Mrs. David La Badie, a cousin of the Tobin girl, in Quincy, telling the latter that their parents were aware that they had gone to visit her.

When Mrs. La Badie, however, read of the girls' disappearance, in the American, she sent them home. Arrived at South Station, the girls telephoned their parents and asked if they were welcome to return. The result was that both girls were soon enjoying Thanksgiving dinners in their respective homes.

"I did not think that I was causing so much worry to my parents," the Tobin girl said in explaining her absence. "We went for a walk and suddenly decided to visit my cousin in Quincy."

WATER MAIN BREAKS; WASHES OUT B. & M.

Old Orchard, Me., Nov. 30.—A water main on Union avenue burst and a torrent of water tore down the street to the Boston & Maine railroad tracks, washing out 22 sleepers and halting traffic over this division. A report likes a cannon ushered in the workout and brought residents to the scene.

Traffic over the eastern division was resumed after a three-hour break. A pool 500 feet long has been formed along the tracks from Union to Atlantic avenues.

MANY GERMANS READY TO SAIL FOR AMERICA

Berlin, Nov. 30. The passports of 40,000 Germans already have been vised in Germany for passage to the United States. Many Germans outside the Fatherland are also seeking to enter America.

Steamship lines in Germany, however, have ceased selling passage to emigrants, declaring their information is that the full quota of 47,000 for the current year already has been taken up.

The new steamer Columbus of the North German Lloyd line, Germany's largest liner, which was scheduled to sail December 12 on her maiden trip, has had her sailing canceled, as the agents say they cannot afford to send her across without third class passengers, which are unsalable because of the quota limitation.

The American consulates all over Germany are being besieged by prospective emigrants who are obtaining visas, although the consulates inform them that a visa is no guarantee of admission to the United States.

The DaRos, Ore., Nov. 30.—Henry D. If London Bridge were falling down

If you were playing London Bridge as in your childhood, what would you choose when imprisoned by the arms of the bridge fastened about you?

Would you choose a platinum watch or a diamond ring, a chest of silver or an amber necklace, a link bracelet or a set of toilet silver? You might if you are a little girl grown up.

If you are a little boy grown up you are harder to please; but even you might be suited with a new watch, some links and buttons for evening wear, a silver cigarette case, a traveling-clock, or gold trinkets for your pockets.

Christmas with its happy giving will soon be here. As you think of those to whom you wish to give, remember that they too are boys and girls grown up. As in their days of playing London Bridge, they would wish for and choose things for their personal use most of all.

Such gifts need not be expensive, but they must be carefully and slowly chosen so that they may be among the most treasured of Christmas offerings. We suggest that you come in as soon as possible to select them.

LAY FATAL FIRE TO REVENGE OF HUSBAND

Chicago, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.)—Henry Peters, forty-five estranged husband of Mrs. Mary Peters, whose rooming house burned Thanksgiving and cremated an aged couple, John and Josie Coyne, today was held by police pending the coroner's inquest.

Mrs. Peters told police she had driven her husband away from the house a week ago and that he threatened then to "get even." She said also that she heard his voice raised in a quarrel in the street in front of the house a half hour before the fire.

Joseph Rolly, former inmate of the house, also was sought by police after Mrs. Peters made a call based on disorderly conduct on her complaint and that no also had made threats.

Peters admitted he still had a key to the house and went there occasionally. He was arrested at the scene of the fire.

MAN DYING AFTER FALL OFF STAGING

Joseph Conley, fifty years old, of No. 60 Cottage street, Charlestown, is dying at Massachusetts General Hospital as the result of a twelve-foot fall from a staging on the coal pockets at Prison Point, Charlestown.

Emma Turner! Your Daughter Wants To See You

If Mrs. Emma Turner, last known to be in the vicinity of Providence, reads this, it is to tell her that her daughter, Mrs. Rose Kennis, No. 29 Mill street, Arlington Center, Mass., wants her.

The daughter was Miss Eita Spartier, but now uses the name of Rose. She has had no trace of her mother for several years but says she married Frank Turner and was a cotton weaver, probably working in some small town. The mother's name was Emma LaForce and she has a sister in Fall River who would also like to hear from her.

"I have known of so many cases where The American has found missing people I will be so thankful if you will help me find my mother," writes the daughter.

JESSE MURPHY'S HALF SISTER MARRIED

Worcester, Nov. 30.—Wedding bells rung in New York, albeit secretly for Miss Lizzie G. Bunker, half-sister of the widely known Jesse Murphy, reputed bandit of the Boston district, now held in Detroit on a murder charge, and Charles H. Weston. The groom is the son of Mrs. Mary Weston, No. 18 Tahanto road. The new Mrs. Weston is the daughter of Mrs. Ellen E. Bunker, No. 552 Franklin street. Mr. Weston is a former navy man and at one time lived in Albany.

ONCE PRINCESS NOW IN GRIP OF POVERTY

Berlin, Nov. 30 (Universal Wireless).—From Crown Princess to poverty-stricken language and music teacher, so poor that it is with difficulty she earns enough to buy a loaf of bread, is the story of Louise, former Crown Princess of Saxony who might have been Queen.

While she was still the wife of the Saxony Crown Prince, Louise found Saxony court so monotonous that she ran off with Andre Giron, Belgian tutor of her children. The Crown Prince divorced her in 1903 and she married Giron.

This romance of the Princess was soon ended in divorce, and in 1907, when she was thirty-seven, she married an Italian music teacher, Enrico Toselli, who was only twenty four, running away with him, as she said "for love and excitement."

A son born to that union has been the cause of much litigation since the pair separated several years ago, the Princess allowing 40,000 lire for the child's maintenance. Three years ago the Princess sued Toselli, charging him with spending the money and neglecting the child.

Now it is learned that the Princess, alone in the world, with all her royal relatives estranged, is living in direst poverty. She occupies one room and a kitchenette in the poorest quarter of Breslau, trying to eke an existence, giving language and music lessons.

SEEKS MOTHER FOR XMAS

Christmas is less than four weeks away.

And John T. Keene, 34 years old, who has been away from Boston a year and a half wants to find his mother, widowed sister and the latter's little boy in time for a Santa Claus reunion. He has asked the American to help him.

When Mr. Keene left Boston his mother, Mrs. Anna Keene, was living with his sister, Mrs. Mary Paisley and her husband near Field's Corner. Since then the sister's husband has died and people near their former home told him the family went to Cambridge.

He has hunted for days and can get no track of them.

"I have just got to find mother before Christmas and be with her on that day," he says. He asks that any information be sent to him through the American or to his address, No. 69 Rutland Square, Boston.

BOY BREAKS LEG IN FOOTBALL GAME

Lonnie Mills, an eighteen-year-old Wakefield youth, suffered a broken leg while playing football on Wakefield Park. He was playing on a scrub eleven when an opposing tackler threw him heavily, and when he was dragged from a pile of players his right leg was broken in two places.

STEAMBOAT ASHORE IN GREAT LAKES

Sandusky, O., Nov. 30.—Telephone messages from Put-in-Bay advised that a steamboat, presumably a freighter, was aground between that island and Kelly's Island, and that because of the heavy weather the crew had not been called to go to the aid of those aboard the distressed vessel.

TRAIN ROBBER SUSPECT TELLS 'FISHY' STORY

Bangor, Me., Nov. 30.—The two men taken into custody at Enfield suspected of being two of the three De Artremont brothers wanted in Oregon for holding up a Northern Pacific Railway train on October 11 and killing four men, were brought here and after examination by Sheriff Fernandes were locked up for further examination and hearing on a charge of vagrancy before the Municipal Court.

The older of the men, the sheriff is convinced, is not one of the men wanted. The younger bears a resemblance to Hugh De Artremont, aged nineteen, meeting every item in the photographs and description of De Artremont sent by the Oregon authorities.

While he apparently accounted for his time since he shipped out from Boston on October 2, to work in the Maine woods, some of his answers indicated he was not telling a straight forward story.

He said his name was Elmer Jackson and that his home was in Cape Cod, although he appeared to know little about that section of Massachusetts, or at Quincy, Mass., the place given as his home on his shipping papers, issued by a Boston labor agency. Rewards totalling $4,800 have been offered for the capture of each of the three brothers.

GIRL RUNAWAYS ARE RETURNED TO JAIL

Skowhegan, Me., Nov. 30.—Mabel Foster, twenty, and Dorothy McGarigle, sixteen, who escaped from the Reformatory for Women, November 21, were returned to the institution from St. George, Canada.

SEIZE TURKEYS AS UNFIT FOR CONSUMPTION

Sixty pounds of turkey on sale at a Blackstone street meat shop were confiscated by Dr. Patrick H. Mullowney, Deputy Health Commissioner, and eight health inspectors on a tour of the down town market district.

These turkeys, dressed and advertised as the genuine goods, were declared by Dr. Mullowney to be unfresh and not fit for consumption.

OTHER CONFISCATIONS.

Turkeys in small quantities were also confiscated in a number of stores on North and Blackstone streets which the investigators visited.

Descending unannounced the Health Inspectors caused consternation among the market dealers on one of their busiest nights of the year, Thanksgiving Eve.

PROBE UNDERWAY.

An investigation which it is believed will be followed by criminal prosecution is being conducted by the Health Department.

In a statement Dr. Mullowney declared:

"These turkeys, dressed and seemingly good food, I found to have been either sickly or not fresh. As a precaution against sickness which may follow those who may eat them I ordered the lot taken away to a city storehouse."

FIRE IS FOUND AFTER HUSBAND QUITS HOME

Worcester, Nov. 30.—Following a quarrel with his wife over her having invited company for Thanksgiving dinner, Emil S. Blair, former Canadian detective, disappeared from his home at No. 99 Austin street, as fire broke out of his bedroom. The police hunt for the ex-sleuth has been unsuccessful.

Mrs. Blair invited company and bought three turkeys. Blair made her cook one last night and ate it himself, with the remark that she wouldn't have such a good time on the holiday as she expected, the wife told detectives.

VERMONT FAILS TO SEE COL. HARVEY

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally by Drinking Jad Salts

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Current Events

—By Arthur Brisbane—

DATES CHANGE, conditions remain; in our little periods of history. Yesterday, Americans, led by Mr. Coolidge in his proclamation, were thanking Providence that we are not as Europe is, torn with war and hatred?

In 1795, George Washington wrote the first Thanksgiving proclamation issued by any United States President. It began: "When we review the calamities that afflict so many other nations, the present condition of the United States affords much matter of consolation and satisfaction."

He specifies four exemptions from foreign war—internal tranquility, unexampled prosperity of all classes of our citizens.

THE KILLING of two bank messengers in New York shows that banditry and murder are becoming systematized. A manager hires professional gunmen, drug fiends that will do anything and kill anybody to get money to buy more drugs. A bank employe "tips off" the manager, Mr. Diamond, described as a "loving father and devoted son." Knowing from the tipster who the bank messengers are, and what route they take with their $43,000 cash, the rest is simple.

The manager stays at a safe distance, his hired dope fiend killers snoot down the victims. The cash is divided, in accordance with the manager's promises.

THAT SOUNDS like an improbable dime novel, but it is part of police records. Criminals being braggarts, and "dope fiends" dreadful cowards, when drugs are kept away from them, the facts come out. Joseph Diamond, twenty-three-year-old younger brother of the murder manager, shows part of his share to a young woman, boasts that he is a "stick-up man," fresh from "tamping off" a co pie of guns, asks the young woman to marry him. She tells.

ONE OF the professional killers, deprived of this drug, whispers to himself, weeps, breaks down, and he tells what he knows.

TO THE EXTENT to which it has increased the drug traffic, prohibition seems to have its drawbacks.

One Congressman suggests that beer be licensed and taxed, the proceeds to be used fighting whiskey. That might be a good idea, especially if the next generation could be persuaded to take beer instead of drugs.

Everybody knows that where alcohol is not used, drugs are used, if they can be got. And being easily hidden, it is quite certain that our kind of law enforcement will never drive them out.

"WE OWE it, therefore, to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those Powers (the Powers of Europe) to declare that we should regard any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety."

JAMES MONROE, fifth President of the United States, wrote that declaration, which embodies the whole of the Monroe Doctrine, one hundred years ago.

That centennial ought not to be ignored, for Monroe's declaration is more important to this country than any other, except the Declaration of Independence. It was never more important than now.

UNDER THAT same Monroe, Florida was added to the United States territory, in 1820, by treaty with Spain. That should be gratefully remembered by ladies and gentlemen now buying mid-Summer garments to be worn in mid-Winter at Jacksonville, St. Augustine, Miami, Palm Beach and a thousand other places in wonderful Florida. By the way, the season there begins earlier every year—it has begun already.

W. J. Connors, of Buffalo, at his own expense and risk, has built an admirable motor road from Miami to the West Coast. See Florida!

GEORGE W. HINMAN reminds business men that our prosperity depends on home trade, and on building up that trade, worth more to us than all the outside world.

HOW CAN that trade be increased? By increasing

SCOFFS AT LOVE THEFT CHARGE MADE BY WIFE

Her interest in a baby boy whose health she helped to restore was the only attraction for her in the home of Robert E. Norton of No. 1490 Washington street, South End, Miss Bertha Morse of Canton, alleged "telephone sweetheart," declared in denying charges made in a bill in equity filed by Mrs. Norton.

Mrs. Norton accused Miss Morse of carrying on long telephone conversations with her husband and asked the court to enjoin her from calling up her husband or entertaining him at the Morse home.

Miss Morse scoffed at the charge made by Mrs. Norton that she was trying to steal the latter's husband.

"Why, I wouldn't be bothered with him," she said. "The only reason I ever visited the Nortons was to see their little boy, Robert, Jr., whom my sister and I took when he was half starved and built up into a healthy boy. Later, when my sister became sick, she sent the boy back to his mother. Then he contracted pneumonia and again we took him and nursed him back to health.

New York, Nov. 30.—A plan for the purchase of a 100,000-acre tract in Louisiana adjoining the Rockefeller and Sage Foundation wild life sanctuaries in order to further protect the wild life of the section was made public today by T. Promoters of a hunting club now hold an option on the land, but it is believed that its owner, E. A. McIlhenny, who made possible the establishment of other sanctuaries, will readily agree to the association's plan, Mr. Pearson said.

VATICAN INSISTS ON LIBERTY

Declares Visit of King Alfonso Entails No Surrender of Its Rights

Rome, Nov. 30 (A. P.)—The Osservatore Romano, official organ to the Vatican, insists the Holy See in no wise has abandoned its claim "to enjoy the liberty and independence which is its right."

The statement is printed by way of protest against the deduction of a certain newspaper that the visit of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain signified the final renunciation of Papal aspirations for the recovery of the temporal power, and in view of the constant reiteration during the Spanish sovereign's stay of the idea that a settlement of the Roman question was imminent.

YIELDING NO RIGHTS.

The Osservatore Romano denies the Vatican by granting permission to the Spanish royalties to come to Rome, acquiesced in "the abnormal situation created for the Pontiff by the events of September, 1870." (It was on September 20, 1870 that the troops of Victor Emmanuel seized Rome, a step which resulted in bringing the remaining states of the church into the then new kingdom of Italy.)

The paper recalls the encyclical of Benedict XV. three years ago, in which that permission was first accorded and in which it was emphatically stated the concession could in no wise be interpreted as "tacit renunciation of our sacrosanct rights."

WILL INSIST ON LIBERTY.

The article concludes:

"The wound opened on September 20, 1870, cannot be cured by blandishments. It is and will remain open until such measures are taken as will not only insure the Holy See the enjoyment of liberty and independence which is its right, but will also convince the whole world that it really enjoys them."

MAN SLAIN; 2 HELD, 3 GIRLS HUNTED

New York, Nov. 30.—John Costelado of Rosebank, Staten Island, was fatally shot early today in a deserted bungalow on Midland Beach, where he, with two male companions and three girls, had driven after a Thanksgiving masquerade. Joseph Chadeo, who is "Joe White" in local pugilistic circles, is in jail charged with the murder, and Mike "Congro" Congrado, another boxer, is held as a material witness. The girls disappeared while Congrado was driving Castolado to the hospital.

7 CARRIED TO SAFETY AT LYNN FIRE

Six children and one man were carried to safety from a burning dwelling at No. 11A Bedford street Lynn, after the occupants of the house were awakened by passersby.

Clad only in night clothes, Charles Metropoulis and his wife each took one of their four children and carried them to the street. Leaving these two children, George, eight years old, and Catherine, five years old, on the sidewalk, they were about to return to the building for the other two, when they were turned back by volumes of curling smoke.

Several spectators, hearing Mrs. Metropoulis' cries, rushed into the building. Soon they returned, carrying Bessie, thirteen years old, and Jennie, twelve years old.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Mary Kersey, who occupies the second floor, carried out her two children, Anne and Catherine, by the back door after finding their escape by the front door blocked.

MILLHAND IS BRIDE OF RICH MAN

By RUTH SNOW BERNS

Is New England prosaic?

Would a fairy ever pick it as a place to work a wonder in?

Doesn't the world think of it as the home of the beans and the cod?

Well then, you Westerner, you Southerner, you Northerner, you scoffer, listen to this for a real live fairy tale:

New Bedford Prince Charming has been married to Cinderella.

Cinderella, who had always worked always struggled, never been in a bank, never worn silk stockings, never, never bought anything without worry, found the whole world open before her, owned a checking account, went in the stores and picked out what she wanted without even asking "How much?"

All this because Francois Xavier Poulin, retired architect, who laid out and built a great section of New Bedford, loved and married Josephine Martel, poor millhand.

And it came about thus:

ENTERS THE PRINCE

The night that the white-haired, lonely old rich man knocked on the door of the poor, tired, little mill worker, the sprites blew dust on the world and a miracle happened in the life of Josephine Martel, New England's Cinderella.

She was tired, tired as only a woman whose life has been given to hardship and the struggle against poverty can be tired. The supper before her was hardly tasted. A knock on the door! Wearily she got up and opened it. Before her stood an immaculate kind faced old man.

"Oh my dear," he cried, "how tired you are! How pitifully tired you are!"

The woman stepped back slowly, too surprised to speak, and the old man came into the room.

"May I sit down?"

Ashamed of her seeming inhospitality, she pushed a chair towards him.

"Eugene is my friend," he told her.

"Oh, Eugene is my friend, too!" she hastened to tell him.

"But you work too hard, my dear, just as Eugene told me. You should rest and not worry."

PITY AKIN TO LOVE

"It is easy to say those things but when one is poor there is no rest and there is always worry."

"As much worry as you have?"

"More! You don't understand how poor I am. I work, work every minute so that I can have food to eat and something to cover me with. Even the poor little room I have to struggle to keep. All my life I have worked." She smiled sadly. "And all my life I shall work."

Then some of the fairy dust must have alighted on the erect old man before her. He rose, came over and took her hand as it lay limp and work worn on the table.

"I am not."

"But why should you do this for me. You saw me yesterday for the first time. What have I done to deserve it?

"You are good. You are tired. All of your life you have worked and struggled and been brave. I don't need it and I want you to have it."

Cinderella put her head in her hands and wept. Her happiness had filled the cup to overflowing.

DREAMS AT TOIL

They talked together, Cinderella in her calico, and the Prince in his broadcloth, while time sped on. The hour struck. The Prince took leave of the little poor lady.

"Will you come again?" Cinderella asked.

"Tomorrow," was the answer.

All the next day as Cinderella worked her thoughts were of the man who had appeared out of nowhere with his vague magic promise. As her fingers guided the machine, spanning thread after thread, she longed for the evening.

Maybe the night before had been a dream and there had been no Prince Charming and there would be none that night. When work was over she hurried home. Exactly as the previous night, she was eating her lonely meal when a knock came at the door. Only this time she rushed to open it.

Prince Charming stood in the doorway.

"You are real! I didn't dream it! I'm so glad!"

NEW LIFE BEGINS

From his pocket he drew out some papers and put them on the table.

"Those are for you."

Cinderella picked them up and examined them.

"They're only papers. What am I to do with them?"

"Take care of them. As long as you live you shall not have to work."

"I—I don't understand," she stammered.

"Those papers are securities that I have made over to you. They are yours now and the money they are worth is enough for you to live on. You are through with the mill, through with work, through with worry."

Tears came to Cinderella's eyes

BABY CLINIC IS RESUMED TODAY

The Better Babies Clinic of the Boston Health Department was to be resumed this afternoon after the holiday afforded a welcome respite to physicians and nurses who have been kept busy for several days examining the many Boston babies who reported with their mothers.

The clinic is held with the cooperation of the American at the Municipal Building, West Brookline street and Shawmut avenue, South End.

Plans are being made to have the clinics take place once a year. Physicians are loud in praise of the work that the clinics are performing. They will continue for about three weeks.

MAYER HOLDS UP CRAIG PARDON

Washington, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.).—The proposed pardon for Comptroller Charles Craig of New York, now facing sixty days in jail for contempt of court, was hung up today while Attorney-General Daugherty awaited word from Federal Judge Mayer, the jurist who sentenced Craig.

Daugherty asked Mayer and District Attorney Hayward Wednesday to rush him their recommendations as to whether Craig should be pardoned.

Hayward has responded. Daugherty today refused to divulge the district attorney's recommendation, but it is understood to be favorable to Craig.

Mayer, however, has not complied with the Attorney-General's request.

FOOTBALL BOYS PAINT TWO TOWNS RED

Salem and Marblehead high school boys, armed with paint and brushes, started out to "paint the town red," in Beverly and Swampscott, in celebration of their Thanksgiving football games.

In both instances, the boys were caught and forced by the police to repair the damage.

Four Marblehead boys were caught in the act while painting their class numerals in crimson on the sidewalk in front of the Swampscott town hall. They were followed to the football grounds, where they were seen to paint their numerals on several benches.

Chief William A. Quinn of the Swampscott police had the boys rounded up during the game, and in the presence of thousands of spectators gave them the alternative of repairing the damage or facing the judge. The boys scrubbed the sidewalk and repainted the benches.

The boys caught in Beverly were forced to paint the benches before the football game took place. They had not painted the sidewalks. In both cases the names were withheld by the police because the persons involved are juveniles.

WIDOW ASKS $50,000 FOR HUSBAND'S DEATH

Hoquiam, Wash., Nov. 30.—Suit for $50,000 damages as compensation for the death of her husband, W. A. Moore, has been started by Mrs. Annie Moore against John G. Lewis, wealthy Aberdeen lumberman, whose car killed Mr. Moore and another man July 3. Mr. Lewis said that he had suffered a lapse of consciousness, his car plunging down Eighth street until at the railroad tracks, where Mr. Moore was stationed as watchman, the machine was out of control and continued straight ahead, instead of making a turn which is necessary at that point.

LYNN WIFE TRIES SUICIDE AFTER ROW

Katie Sitaraski, twenty-nine years old, of No. 9 Grace road, Lynn, mother of four children, attempted suicide by drinking poison at her home, following a fight with her husband during which he swung his fists and she wielded a flatiron. The wife has a black eye and the husband a partially severed ear. The woman was removed to the Lynn Hospital by the police. She is declared in a dangerous condition from iodine poisoning. The children were cared for by relatives.

NEW BONUS PLAN FOR CONGRESS

Washington, Nov. 30 (C. N. S.).—A new soldier bonus plan will be presented to Congress by Representative Meyer Jacobstein of Rochester, N. Y., a political economist.

"I shall suggest," he said, "that Congress obligate the country to expend annually about $100,000,000 out of the general budget to pay the ex-service man.

"(1) Insurance against unemployment in weekly allotments up to the amount he is entitled to by virtue of his adjusted compensation.

"(2) Insurance against sickness not confined to or connected with service origin. Such insurance likewise to be paid in weekly instalments up the limit of service credits due him by virtue of his adjusted compensation as set forth in the bill vetoed by President Harding.

"(3) Old age pensions in weekly payments.

"These benefits should be offered in addition to the several other options, namely education, vocational training, buy a home, settling on land or dental benefits."

GIRL ESCAPES INJURY AS STILL EXPLODES

Springfield, Nov. 30.—Fanny Rafer, 13-year-old school girl, escaped uninjured when the 10-gallon still, which the police allege she was operating in the bathroom of her father's home, exploded and wrecked the furnishings and windows in the front of the apartment. The case has been turned over to Warren S. Fielding, district supervisor of the prohibition enforcement squad. The still was made from a wash boiler, according to the police.

Tokio (A.P.).—A proposal has been made that the imperial household department send Prince Kan-in and a warship to America next year to express Japan's gratitude to the United States for her assistance at the time of the earthquake.

Chicago.—The trade movement by the Americas had its inception at least 500 years ago among the Indians of Colombia, Dr. Alden Mason, archeologist, has found. Long before white people had any thoughts about the two American continents, the Indians of Colombia were walking on paved streets.

JAPS PLAN TO CUT FOREIGN COMPETITION

Manila, Nov. 30 (A.P.).—Yokohama, destroyed by earthquake September 1, never will regain its importance as a commercial center, in the belief of Joseph P. Martin, traffic manager in the Orient for the United States Shipping Board.

"In 1857 France obtained concessions in Yokohama from the Japanese government which enabled French merchants there to prosper exceedingly," Martin explained. "Then the English, Americans and other nationals applied for and got similar concessions, resulting in a considerable portion of the city's trade falling into foreign hands.

"But with the destruction of the city and transfer to Kobe of its shipping business, the concessions lost their value. This will not be regained unless the city can come back. And this is what the Japanese intend to see does not happen. From now on they intend that Yokohama shall be a mere outlet for Tokio, with no important trade of its own."

VETERAN CABBIE TO BUY NEW TAXI

Johnnie Buckley, Brockton's veteran cabbie, who has driven a one horse cab in that city for twenty-nine years, and who has had many notables for passengers, has at last decided to exchange whip and reins for a motor, and soon will be shouting "Taxi!" at his railroad station stand. If you are cooking a hot cereal try this method:—Measure off two tablespoonfuls for each member of the family. Mix it with the cereal and cook as you always cook the cereal.

Kellogg's Bran is scientifically prepared and ready to eat, but its regulatory powers are in no way impaired if you cook it with other cereals.

Kellogg's Bran has won the friendly recommendation of physicians because it does give prompt and permanent relief from mild or chronic constipation and because it can be eaten without forming a habit. Again, Kellogg's Bran will free you from drastic, dangerous cathartics.

When constipation conditions exist in your system or when you are threatened, do not take half-way measures. Foods with a partial bran content cannot free you! What you must have is Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL BRAN! Go the limit; get relief!

OPEN SATURDAY EVENINGS

BIG CABARET TONIGHT AT "MUSIC BOX" TO AID XMAS FUND

EVENT TO ATTRACT HUNDREDS

Miss Anna Killion and American Girls Club Will Be Hostesses

Boston's newest and daintiest dance hall, "The Music Box," on Huntington avenue, opposite Symphony Hall, will be the scene of a brilliant cabaret and dancing party tonight in aid of the American's Helping Hand Christmas Basket Fund.

It is expected that hundreds of dollars will be turned into the fund as a result of tonight's party, which is being conducted under the auspices of Anna Griffin Killion and members of the American Girls Club.

Those who form the committee of the American Girls' Club are Margaret Cochran, Martha Freed, Emily Thomas, Anna Creedon, Margaret Cargill and Frances Cavi. Tickets may be obtained at the door tonight.

Free use of "The Music Box" was granted for tonight's affair through kindness of Walter S. Hall, its business manager. "The Music Box" is modern in every respect, being prettily decorated with cleverly arranged mirrors. The color scheme of red giving an impression of warmth and coziness. Its floor is unsurpassed.

Joe O'Leary's famous ten piece orchestra will play for dancing. All its members, through the courtesy of the American Federation of Musicians, have volunteered their services for the occasion. They have promised to outdo themselves at tonight's party. Mr. O'Leary, who is always interested in worthy charities will be present in person to lead his orchestra.

EXHIBITION DANCING.

An excellent entertainment will be given at intermission. This program includes the Imperial Trio consisting of Walter Byrnes, Walter Catchpole and Billy Keene in songs. Lowell Russell and Kathryn Robin in ballroom exhibition dancing. Miss Marjorie Killion in specialty dances, Jack O'Brien in up-to-date songs and "Billy" Paine in tenor solos.

One of the feature events of the evening will be an auction dance. The highest bidder will have the pleasure of dancing with Miss Margaret Black, who was crowned by a group of eminent Bostonians to be the most charming girl in Greater Boston.

It will be remembered that Miss Black represented this city as "Miss Boston" at the famous national beauty show in Atlantic City last September, being sent there as the winner of the Ancient Order of Hibernians contest.

OPERETTA POPULAR

The management of the Wilbur Theatre reports a big demand for tickets for the opening performance of "The Lady in Ermine" next Monday night. Ten per cent of the proceeds of that night's performance will be presented to the American Fund, through the ushers of the Messrs. Shubert, owners of the production.

This charming operetta, which ran an entire season in New York last year and has been heard by thousands of theatre goers in London Vienna and Paris is reported to be one of the best musical shows that will play in Boston this year. It abounds with two stirring marches, numbers and an unusual dramatic plot. A rich vein of comedy runs throughout the production.

Gladys Walton and Rollin Grimes are among those who are featured in the cast of ninety people. Miss Walton and Mr. Grimes are considered among the best dancers on the American stage today. Miss Walton began her professional career as a fashion dancer and is but two years old as a dancing artiste, but careful of her diction as to be a proper physical condition at all times.

COOK'S ARCTIC TENDER IS NOW LOBSTER BOAT

Dr. Frederick H. Cook, who admitted he discovered the North Pole but couldn't prove it has not finished the first week of a fourteen-year penitentiary sentence for swindling oil stock investors.

The O-5, a sturdy power cruiser which served the Cook polar expedition as a trailer and lighter seventeen years ago, has sunk to equal ignominy. It is a lobster boat at South Weymouth.

And a forlorn looking boat it is. The navigation instruments were stripped from the boat when it was picked up a derelict by a Marblehead curio collector. It is battered and scarred, in need of paint, and the care of a fond crew.

Years and years ago when Dr. Cook set out to discover the Pole, the O-5 rode the waves behind the Bradley. Dr. Cook's ship. When the Bradley was locked in the ice of the North, the sturdy O-5 put out with Dr. Cook in command and worked its way among the ice floes Northward.

Cook said the O-5 got rather close to the Pole, and the University of Copenhagen decorated him for saying so. In the course of time the sturdy tender reached Massachusetts waters.

Frank Leslie of Waltham bought it for a song and used it for a pleasure craft for several years.

Then one night when the seas were heavy, the O-5 broke from her moorings and drifted to Marblehead, where she was salvaged by Frank Schlieff, a collector of marine curios.

Schlieff didn't want the boat, but he wanted the navigating instruments, the bell, and whatever else could be removed with screw driver. He got what he wanted and sold the O-5 to Albert Turner, a Weymouth lobster fisherman.

Like Dr. Cook, the O-5's glory is in the past. Even Turner admits there is not much glory for a lobster boat. But according to Turner the O-5 is a "durned good lobster boat, and I intend to keep her as long as I'm in the business."

BOAT WHICH 'DOC' COOK TOOK TO ARCTIC

EXPLORER'S TENDER NOW PLEBIAN LOBSTER CRAFT

ULSTER VOTING HOLDS IRISH INTEREST

Dublin, Nov. 30.—With the British elections nearing, Ireland's interest is centred in Ulster, where thirteen members of Parliament are to be elected. Most of the seats in Westminster from the Ulster district are uncontested and the incumbents, supporters of Premier Baldwin, are expected to be returned to office.

Candidates favoring incorporation with the Irish Free State were elected in East Tyrone and Fermanagh. Only one of the members, however took his seat. The other, a Sinn Feiner, was interned by the Northern government.

Change of ministry in England is expected to have important bearing on the boundary issue. The land issue is expected to be an important factor in the election. Although landlordism has been abolished in Southern Ireland, where there are still many rent paying tenants.

FARRAR WILL SING IN SPITE OF CHURCHES

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 30.—Geraldine Farrar will sing in Atlanta tonight at the City Auditorium.

Geraldine Farrar not to disappoint an Atlanta audience.

With the doors of two churches closed against her, it at first appeared that she would be forced to make good her promise to "sing in the streets in order not to disappoint an Atlanta audience.

The city auditorium had been engaged by Tech High School for a minstrel program for tonight, but those in charge of the entertainment withdrew in favor of Miss Farrar after a conference with Charles J. Foley, her manager, and postponed the minstrel show.

Dr. John W. Haas, pastor of the Baptist tabernacle, declared that after Miss Farrar's appearance in "Zaza" here three years ago, it is impossible for a church to permit the use of its facilities for her concert. Dr. W. H. Paprade, Jr., presiding elder of the Atlanta Methodist district, said essentially the same.

"No one can make me disappoint my friends in Atlanta," the opera star declared. "I positively will sing before an Atlanta audience tonight. I do not know where I shall sing, but if I have to, I shall sing outdoors."

EXCISE BOARD DISCIPLINES RUM SELLERS

Licenses of 169 victuallers and soft drink dealers were suspended or revoked by the Boston Licensing Board during the past six months as a result of liquor raids and complaints by Boston police.

When prohibition became law, it was predicted the excise board, consisting of three men, would become obsolete. To the contrary, at many times it is as busy as it was four years ago.

Complaints have been received against pool rooms or bowling alleys during the past six months, and only six have been subjects of complaints since prohibition.

Thirty victuallers lost their licenses. Fifty soft drink emporiums lost their privileges to sell beverages. For selling liquor or on suspicion of selling liquor, forty-five victuallers' licenses were suspended for periods of from two days to six months. Licenses of forty-four soft drink establishments were suspended.

Life-Size Statue of Pharaoh Thrills Tut Watchers

Luxor, Nov. 30.—A handful of watchers outside the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen were treated to the first real thrill of the season when Howard Carter removed a life-sized statue of the Pharaoh which had been standing in an antechamber of the tomb on the right hand side of the sealed door to the mortuary chapel.

The statue was removed to the workshop of the expedition for a further preservative treatment before being removed to the museum at Cairo. The statue was laid down on a stretcher and carried shoulder-high by four natives.

General C. W. Abbot Dead

Warren, R. I., Nov. 30.—General Charles W. Abbot, adjutant general of the State, is dead. General Abbot had been in poor health for several years.

LUSITANIA WAS SUNK BY PLOT LONG PLANNED

Washington, Nov. 30.—Proof that the German government deliberately planned and ordered the sinking of the Lusitania is contained in the secret archives of the American government and has been submitted to the mixed claims commission in support of the fight this government is making for full payment of all losses of life and property sustained by American citizens in the sinking of the vessel.

PROOF ASSERTED.

That such proof exists is officially disclosed in a monumental brief just filed before the commission on behalf of the American government by the American agent, Robert W. Bonynge, representing the American state department.

Mr. Bonynge's brief also shows that the American government in resisting the contention of the present German government that the only persons entitled to make claims would be the dependents or legal representatives of Lusitania victims.

SINKING ORDERED.

The evidence that Germany ordered the sinking of the Lusitania is contained in exhibits filed before the mixed claims commission but since the originals belong to the secret archives of the State Department, the American agent has not made the exhibits public.

"The warning," the brief asserts, "which emanated from the German embassy as signed by the ambassador to the United States from Germany (Bernstorff), and as published in New York papers on the morning of May 1, 1915, bore date of April 15, 1915. This date, as a matter of fact, was nine days before the Lusitania even got into port, and two weeks before she loaded for sailing."

the number of purchasers here in America, of course, that is by increasing population. And that can be done by bringing in more people—of the right kind—from Europe.

Ten million more people would mean two million more automobiles, twenty million more pairs of shoes, yearly; hats, houses, sheep, chickens, eggs and everything else in proportion bought, sold, consumed.

WE CAN sell to our own people, getting good money for what we sell, keeping the money, work and wages in the family. Those that fight against immigration of the right sort are enemies of this country, and particularly of its farmers and working men.

WBZ HOGGING OF AIR THWARTED BRITISH TEST

During the Tuesday night transoceanic broadcast tests, when American enthusiasts were crowding tubes to the limit in the effort to hear the British stations, several American broadcast stations seemed determined to drown out the faint incoming signals.

One of the worst offenders in this respect was WBZ, the Westinghouse station at Springfield. This station, on account of the peculiar barrier that seems to prevent radio communication at times between Boston and Springfield, had not been getting through to Boston for some time.

But Tuesday night it came through like a ton of brick, with so much power that the signals seemed twenty meters broad, and hopes of hearing England went glimmering.

PLEAD IGNORANCE.

The Radio Editor of the American called WBZ by telephone asking if the station would not please suspend during the test. The person answering at WBZ declared he was the operator, and insisted that at WBZ they were unaware that any trans-Atlantic tests were under way, and this in spite of the fact that their first selection after 10 o'clock was Yankee Doodle.

Gimbel Brothers' station was another offender that gummed up the test for New England. Others stations were complained of, too.

In fact so serious was the interference from this lack of co-operation, that Arthur H. Lynch, who has been in charge of the effort by American and British broadcast stations to establish two-way communication announced today that the test Saturday night would have to be abandoned, unless assurances were received that American stations would stay off the air.

DROWN OUT MARCONI.

A radio from the British Broadcasting Company expressed regret that the voices of Signor Guglielmo Marconi and Georges Carpentier failed to reach American listeners in a better fashion.

Mr. Lynch said that owing to interference part only of the Marconi program was heard and no report received so far showed that Carpentier's words has been picked up.

New Vaccine May Make Men Immune to Fatigue

London, Nov. 30.—The beginning of an age of tireless men is believed to be foreshadowed by the announcement of the discovery of a vaccine to render human beings immune to fatigue.

Sir Robert Armstrong Jones, great authority on mental diseases, is now testing the anti-fatigue vaccine in his laboratories, and in time it will be placed within reach of everybody. Sir Robert declines to specify the nature of the discovery until his experiments are concluded.

From the distinct passages of Marconi's speech received, it appeared that the great inventor predicted radio would play an important part in international relations, making possible a better understanding between nations.

His also expressed gratification over the development of radio "since I first experimented 20 years ago with the radio telegraph, across the Atlantic, while now the human voice can be heard across the ocean."

Mr. Lynch said appeals would be made to the interfering stations to stay off the air Saturday when British stations are sending. He expressed appreciation of the fact that no interference from amateur stations was noted.

HECKLERS GET AFTER WINSTON CHURCHILL

London, Nov. 30.—Winston Churchill is having lively experiences in his election campaign in West Leicester. At most of his meetings demands are made that he tell about the Dardanelles campaign in 1915.

"Nothing was done in that expedition without the approval of the whole cabinet," is Churchill's answer to these demands. "The royal commission appointed to investigate the matter sat for six months and in the whole of its findings there is not one word of criticism or detraction of myself. If the Dardanelles had been forced the war would have ended in 1915."

MILLION CROOKS TABULATED AT CAPITAL

Washington, Nov. 30 (I.N.S.)—The national capital has become the world's greatest clearing house for information and silent fingers of criminals.

The fingerprints and Bertillon measurements of more than 1,000,000 persons who are either serious criminals or who have been arrested on suspicion of committing serious crimes are now on file in the Bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice and this enormous library of criminal identification is being added to daily.

William J. Burns, chief of the Bureau of Identification, is in charge. He announced today that arrangements had been completed with virtually all foreign nations whereby these governments will promptly transmit records and information concerning their chief "crooks," thus centering in Washington an international crime clearing house.

Burns believes such an agency will aid materially in checking crime not only in the United States but throughout the world.

The first step in the formation of this clearing house was taken with great secrecy several weeks ago. At that time more than 600,000 finger prints and 100,000 Bertillon records of American criminals were transferred to Washington from the Federal Prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

The next step was the acquisition of the files of the National Bureau of Chiefs of Police in the United States, containing more than 400,000 prints, and now to these have been added thousands of others obtained from Scotland Yard and heads of police in Paris, Berin, Vienna and elsewhere.

It comprises the world's greatest collection of criminal records, eclipsing even the extensive bureau at Scotland Yard which long has been known as the world clearing house.

A. J. Reno, finger print and bertillon expert is in immediate charge of the bureau and thirty experts are employed.

"The centralization of criminal records here," Burns predicted today, "will greatly reduce crime throughout the world. For instance, foreign governments can get in touch with us by cable or wireless and within a few hours we can return them post

SHOT IN LOVE ROW, BUT SHIELDS SUITOR

MOTHER AND CHILD.

ROCCO MONGIARDO
Revere suitor who gave his blood for transfusion to Mrs. Carlo after shooting her

On top, Mrs. Francesca Carioti, who was shot by her suitor during a love row in her home at Revere and at first denied that he was her assailant. Below, Mrs. Carioti's daughter [illegible] who ordered out of the house by [illegible] before the shooting.

GIVES BLOOD TO SAVE WOMAN HE SHOT IN SIDE

She is Mrs. Francesca Carioti, thirty-five years old, of No. 760 Broadway, Revere, widow, now in a critical condition at the Massachusetts General Hospital. A bullet severed an artery in her side.

Rocco Mongiardo, thirty-two years old, a shell shocked and gassed World War veteran, decorated for bravery by the American Army, and a boarder in Mrs. Carioti's home, is under arrest charged with the shooting. He is a brother-in-law of the widow.

ARGUED OVER PISTOL.

According to the police, Rocco took a loaded .38-calibre revolver belonging to Mrs. Carioti from her dresser drawer. There was an argument and Rocco left the house in a huff.

As Rocco entered the house he was confronted by Mrs. Carioti, who resumed the argument relative to the revolver where they had left off earlier in the day.

Turning to the woman's daughter Josephine eleven years old, Rocco told her to go outside and wait in his automobile. The girl obeyed and the argument was resumed.

WIDOW ENRAGED.

Mrs. Carioti, enraged at used Rocco of leaving the city for several days with another woman. Rocco denied the accusation, and drew the revolver and fired two shots at the woman. Both shots went wild.

Terrified, Mrs. Carioti ran toward her bedroom, and was shot in the side as she ran. She fell on the bedroom floor just as Josephine, ran into the house and grasped [illegible] mother in her arms.

Rocco, under questioning, admitted his guilt, but declared he had not intended to shoot the woman. When informed Mrs. Carioti was perhaps mortally wounded and that she might die from loss of blood unless there was an immediate transfusion, Rocco pleaded with the police and hospital authorities to be permitted [illegible] her. I don't want her to die. Let me give my blood for her."

The request was granted. Hasty preparations for the transfusion operation were made, and the blood was [illegible]

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

A stream of increased dividends continues to gush forth

During October fifty-four companies announced better payments, while November brought forty-seven such announcements.

Since this column began to keep tabs on dividend happenings, six months ago, no fewer than 344 industrial and miscellaneous companies have taken steps toward dividend action, and during the same period forty-eight railroads have also treated their stockholders likewise.

• • •

What does this mean?

Does it simply reflect enlarged profits?

Or, does it contain a deeper & more fundamental significance?

• • •

The wages of capital have not been increased in line with the wages of workers.

Those depending upon dividends and interest for their living have not had their income rates increased to keep up with the increase which has taken place in the cost of living.

• • •

It costs just about 50 per cent. more to live now than it did in 1914 and theretofore

Wages, on the whole, have increased quite as much—in many cases considerably more

• • •

But the dividends paid by the majority of our industrial and transportation companies are not today 50 per cent above what they were in 1914—times

Nor is the interest rate paid on high grade bonds today 50 per cent above what it then was.

• • •

This means that the return on invested capital has not advanced in harmony with the rise in the cost of living

• • •

May it not, be, therefore, that the dividend situation, so to speak, which we are now witnessing, is deeply based? May it not be this movement will spread and expand until the wages of capital shall have been brought more into line with the present cost of living?

• • •

Following the practise inaugurated shortly after this extremely interesting development got under way, this column today brings the dividend record up to date. The following table enumerates the principal dividend changes announced during November:

Chicago Nipple Manufacturing Co. has declared quarterly dividend of 25 cents on Class "A" stock, payable January 2 to stock of record December 15.

GULF STATES IS OFF MORE THAN 3 POINTS

New York stock market today was the dullest in a long time. It was evident many money makers were absent, extending the Thanksgiving holiday.

Wall Street was unable to turn any definite interest to the many developments abroad or in the policy of devoted attention at recess of business to stocks as affected by opening news.

Maracaibo Oil was at a new 1923 high.

Davison Chemical sold at 74, then sank to 7. The low in the preceding session was 80.

Oil shares were quiet and practically unchanged. The rally in the copper market this week gave the metal a new impetus and while there was no extraordinary buying in evidence there was less pressure to sell in quarters where control was said are a large factor in the trend.

A fair export inquiry is in the market, but buyers abroad hesitate to purchase on the basis of prices quoted here. A tariff on imported copper it held would remedy the detriment it is said, has proved a boon to the copper industry owing to flooding the country with foreign product. Prominent producing interests heartily approve of action to prevent home mines from being swamped out of existence by the cheap labor of South American countries.

FLOOD OF PETITIONS AID MOVE TO END RADIO INTERFERENCE

FANS DESCRIBE HOW CODE WRECKS ENTERTAINMENT

The skids are being set for radio interference

The clans—excuse us, the fans—are gathering.

Sifters of the petitions to President Coolidge asking for action for relief from an intolerable condition are signing and getting their friends to sign. The petitions are pouring in.

Letters are coming in with them, heartily indorsing the efforts of the American to remedy existing conditions. Complaints of present interference fill the letters

LIKE BOILER FACTORY.

"My loud speaker sounds at times like echoes from a boiler factory," writes one. "More power to the American" writes another. And thus they go. Here are a few:

"Radio Editor:

"Enclosed find the signed petition New York stations simply out of the question. Any station over 1000 w. reception very poor on account of interference by code. Keep up the good work. H. Smallidge."

"127 Cedar street, Haverhill."

BAD TO WORSE

"Radio Editor.

"Dear Sir

"Enclosed find the signed petition. I compliment you on the stand you have taken as regards the fierce interference the radio fans are experiencing. With comparatively few exceptions many receptions of radio broadcast are getting from bad to worse as the nights go by, and my loud speaker at times resembles echoes from a boiler factory. I often wonder, if conditions don't improve, how long will it be before the 'dyed in-the-wool fan' ties a can on radio.

"Wishing you good success to your movement, I remain,

"JOHN U. FOSTER.

"92 Thorndike St., West Somerville, Mass."

"Radio Editor:

"More power to you in your efforts to rout the enemy, the code. It is truly a fact and has spoiled many a good concert.

"Radio Editor:

"Enclosed you will find a signed petition which is being sent by fans in three homes. Last night we were receiving and could not get WGI a bit clear because of the code interference. Newton fans"

OPPOSES PETITIONS.

Then we have with us one critic. Here is the letter.

"Radio Editor.

"Dear Sir:

"It is with surprise and amusement that I read of your latest circulation plan to bother the President with the troubles of the dumb users of the "simple sets for simple people." No doubt WBF causes more or less interference in the immediate vicinity of Boston harbor but do you really think that this fact warrants the adoption of your plan?

"Such a fine plan the General Electric Company and the R. C. A. no doubt, but will not affect radio apparatus on the British, Dutch, etc., ships. Such a law would only apply to the seacoast anyway and there are as many foreign ships as there are American ships here.

"The government could not enforce such a law for two reasons, one, the good reason that we are a party to the London convention, in which our present radio wave lengths were established, second, that radio waves do not recognize the 3-mile limit from headland to headland, but come in quite as strong on the outside as the inside. I know of not one broadcast station operating on 360 meters. Your disgruntled BCL" is correct.

"You can't get very many shore stations down to 400 because if the TRT and IAW had to cut down their tube sets at the G. E.'s prohibitive prices it would bankrupt them. Then, when they blew a bottle they would have to shut down for a couple of months while another came from the factory, for they absolutely refuse to keep extra tubes on hand. You're dealing with a monopoly there, you know.

TRY TO BUY ONE.

"If you don't believe this, just try to buy a 2-element tube. Now, about the 360 meter wave. It is authorized for use on all free gn shins and I personally think the Coast Guard has enough to do as it is keeping us from drinking good liquor without dashing out and confiscating the harp condensers and antennae and I only heard one (WST on one occasion) on 550. This was at the request of the ship station. I know you can tune completely and amateur stations out on broadcast waves with a selective, loose coupled receiver, because I have done it on innumerable occasions in New York.

"M. T. McMILLAN

"KXN, New Bedford."

If you are a broadcast listener and have not signed the petition to President Coolidge, you are not doing your duty. The future of radio broadcasting depends on freedom from unnecessary interference

Petition to President

TO the Honorable Calvin Coolidge,
President of the United States:

We, the undersigned radio broadcast listeners, respectfully call your attention to the serious interference to radio reception which is caused by remediable factors. We petition you to take action to have this interference stopped.

Paste additional paper on the petition, sign it, get your friends to sign it and forward to the Radio Editor, Boston American, 80 Summer street, Boston 6, Mass.

DISHPAN ANTENNA WORKS AT 1400 MILES

Minneapolis, Nov. 30.—A radio receiver, which, with a dishpan for an antenna, catches broadcasts from a station 1 400 miles away, has been developed by Bowden Washington, radio engineer, it was announced here today. The receiver works on a somewhat new principle termed cascade regeneration, which renders extremely small antennae highly effective.

With four dry cells, Audion tubes and a dynamo on a chair in a nearby room, and another on the floor for a counterpoise, signals from Dallas, Tex., were heard on a loud speaker. The receiver works equally well with a fly screen, a sardine wire or any small body of metal for an antenna.

PARIS CHAMBER MAY BEGIN BROADCASTING

Paris, Nov. 30.—The Chamber of Deputies has been asked to install a radio broadcasting apparatus. Deputies who render yeoman service on parliamentary committees, but who spare their eloquence on the floor of the chamber are not enthusiastic over the idea.

SUNDAY'S BRITISH RADIO TEST PUT OFF

London, Nov. 30.—The "listening in to America" radio test planned for next Sunday has been postponed until an unnamed date because of technical difficulties. The plan was to establish a seventeen-tube receiving set on the South Downs—high Hills, south of London—so as to enable owners of crystal sets in England to hear American broadcasting relayed from the receiving station.

MARCONI PHONE HEARS AT 500 MILES

Receiving instruments were distributed on one of its steamers, the Conte Rosso, which is now voyaging to New York, and messages were picked up and heard distinctly from a distance of 500 miles.

He set the time between 10:15 and 10:30 o'clock when he heard the station announced, but said that fading spoiled the reception.

Superneutrodyne Parts List to Be Printed

Many enthusiasts have written to the American that since publication of the specifications and instructions for the Superneutrodyne it has been impossible or nearly so to obtain parts in the radio supply stores. On this account a list of substitute parts which the radio stores carry in stock is being prepared and will be published

UPKEEP COST OF SUPER SET IS LOW

By M. A. SIMMONS
Superneutrodyne Inventor.

The American today prints the second instalment of the description of the new "super" by the inventor of this marvelous receiver. In subsequent articles Mr. Simmons will describe new modifications of the hookup and specify parts which may be substituted for those already specified.

The superneutrodyne as explained in a previous article, was evolved during the construction of a regular neutrodyne. And, although I have hooked up twenty neutrodynes, I found none that would bring in stations that the four-tube "Super" will not bring in. Actually it seems to be easy to hear a station on the four-tube "super" than on the regular neutrodyne.

Also I found that when a neutrodyne was allowed to oscillate and a station was tuned in by the zero beat method, the signal was terrific. Such a method, however, made extreme critical tuning and resulted in poor quality.

The ordinary neutrodyne seems to be a hard set to build and properly adjust. Some will not agree with me here. Some parts seem to go together properly, while others, made apparently exactly like them, will not obtain results of what adjustments are made.

WONDERFUL RESULTS

One day while working on a poor neutrodyne, I found that I could produce wonderful results with a few changes and using only one step of radio-frequency. As a matter of fact, the attempt to neutralize the tube capacity by condensers would produce oscillations.

The four-tube set had more volume than the old neutrodynes, which did not oscillate and seemed O. K. in the hands of other makers of radio frequency amplifiers. I do not say that the super set has more volume than any other set. Volume that is harsh and blasting is not, in my opinion, what the radio public desires; but rather just sufficient strength to operate a good loud speaker on stations 1 500 miles away and at 1 give excellent quality.

You long distance hounds know as well as I do that more distance has been obtained by using one step of audio in place of two steps. Look what some of the single tube sets get.

QUIET OPERATION.

1—Radio frequency amplification. This is sufficient to reach the Pacific coast under good receiving conditions and in good location. This has been done on fifteen feet of aerial lying on the floor, with ground connection, reception confirmed, during Pacific tests. Kansas City has been received on loud speaker with ground only and without antenna.

2—Ease of operation. Two dials which may be charted and reset for any particular station, tune the set. Both dials tune practically the same. Different antennas do not affect the dial readings. The difference between antenna and no antenna is only half a degree on the first dial.

4—Quality of reproduction. A slight hiss will be heard when the detector tube rheostat is advanced too far. This is the only way in which the quality may be disturbed.

LOW COST

5—Sharpness in tuning. The set will weed out the undesired stations. If you are located a few blocks from a powerful station, you may not succeed without a wave-trap, but neither will any other set.

6—Low cost of upkeep. The set draws a total of one ampere, using all UV201 As, or a total of not quite two amperes, using a UV200 as a detector. This means a larger capacity storage battery need not be used. Uses 90 volts B battery.

9—Not expensive to build. First price cost of material only $43 40 for the best material. (See List of parts to be published later.) This may be brought lower by substituting other parts recommended in the list. Price is exclusive of cabinet, tubes, batteries, etc.

LEHIGH BEATS BROWN THROUGH CLEVER PLAY OF GREER

FULLBACK SCORES TWICE

Providence, Nov. 30.—Brown bowed to Lehigh before a crowd of eight thousand. The score was 12 to 6.

On the defensive in the first half, Lehigh reversed the tables and scored two touchdowns in the last half.

The Miners' fullback, Greer, was the hero. He made two touchdowns and several spectacular plays. Sanford, McGoldrick and Roth brought the crowd to their feet on several occasions with their fine tackles and field running.

Stiffler, who made the touchdown for Brown, was ably assisted in the defense by Pohlman and Swaney.

In the first half, Lehigh was unable to check Brown in its march down the field by successful line bucking and forward passes. With the ball on the 20 yard line, a forward by Myers, who substituted for Eckstein, to Stiffler, who carried the ball over, put Brown on the offensive. Pohlman failed to kick the goal.

Lehigh was not disheartened by the score, however, and made their first down immediately after they got possession of the ball in the second quarter.

Starting in the third quarter, Lehigh went at the Bear with a vengeance and, early in the quarter, Greer carried the ball over the line for a touchdown after his men had gained much ground in line bucking and successful forward passes. Prior failed to kick. That tied the score.

Brown then was on the defensive, but their efforts to check the Lehigh team were of no avail, who kept control of the ball throughout the quarter and checked the Bear in its attempts to make the downs.

In the final quarter Lehigh put the finish on the game when Greer again made a touchdown after a neat end run. He was assisted by splendid interference.

The summary:

ST. JAMES TEN TO THREE FOR ST. JOHN'S

Haverhill, Nov. 30.—St. James' High, after its ten to three victory over St. John's Prep, at St. James' Park, claims the national high school championship of the country, and issued a challenge to any schoolboy eleven in the United States to play here or anywhere.

St. James would like to play Medford, champions of the Suburban League, who will be challenged promptly.

St. John's, with a flashy offensive game, had a slight edge on the Haverhill boys in the first quarter, although they lost the ball on downs five yards from St. James goal line after advancing from the St James' 46-yard line.

St. James put it all over St. John's in the second half and marched the ball from their own 46-yard line to the goal line for a touchdown. Broderick went through right guard from the one-yard line.

Kelley of St John's pulled a bone just before the touchdown when he tackled Donahue. St. James' left half back, who was trying to catch a forward pass behind his own goal line. If the pass had grounded St James would have lost the ball on downs, but Kelley's tackle gave St James' the ball on the one-yard line.

Broderick of St James kicked a field goal from the 35 yard line in the third quarter. Another attempt he made in the second period failed.

St. James played havoc with St John's air game and only one out of a dozen passes was completed while St. James completed several.

Hannigan, St. James' quarterback, was the star and his generalship was partly responsible for the victory. He kicked off a 24-yard run through the St. John's eleven in the third period and was the most dangerous man on the field.

RINDGE TECH WINS FROM SOMERVILLE

Rindge forward passes and Somerville's lack of a punch when a punch was needed lost Somerville a chance to win its annual game with Rindge, Cambridge won 6 to 0

The score came in the second period. A series of forward passes, the distance of 20 yards, Smith to Ellsworth, landed the ball on Somerville's 20 yard line. On the third down Myers crashed through Somerville's secondary defence and amid wild joy in the Rindge stands crossed the goal line. He failed in the try for the goal.

A cross-country run between the halves resulted in a Rindge victory over Cambridge High and Latin by a score of 30-33.

DOHERTY WINNER IN TEN-MILE RUN

In a field of nineteen starters, John Doherty, of Dorchester Club, who won the New England intercollegiate cross-country championship, captured the New England ten-mile championship held at Jamaica Plain under the auspices of the Queen Quality A. A.

Doherty negotiated the ten mile course in one hour two minutes and forty seconds with Clif Horne, 100 yards in the rear, in second place, and Tom Henigan 50 yards behind Horne.

BOSTON'S NEW CLOTHING STORE OPENS

Overcoat Day—Saturday, Dec. 1st—Will Make Overcoat History

No Brass Bands—No Speeches—No Souvenirs—Nothing but Clothing Education, and Clothing Revelation for the Harassed Clothing Wearer.

Contrary to Optimistic Inexperience, Opening Prices Will Not Reflect the Easy Money Age—the prices for some time indeterminate are confessedly calculated to popularize Sullivan's New Summer Street Clothing Store, and are admittedly commercially inadequate and—temporary.

Contrary to Optimistic Inexperience, this store will not start high and fall low—it will start low and rise high.

AS AN INTRODUCTION

OVERCOATS

In All the Happy Consonance of Fabric to Model and Model to Fabric.

$13.90

N. B.—Before the trade in general tell you, this advertisement plainly anticipates and admits that no business could be permanently operated at these prices—it is admitted freely beforehand that they are made solely with the idea of introducing the new store.

To Clothing Buyers:

Mr. William H. Sullivan, for 37 years an outstanding successful clothing manufacturer of vast activities and operations, today announces his entrance into the ready made retail clothing trade.
You may be assured, when as a clothing purchaser you buy from Sullivan's that the relationship of agency, thus established, will be performed with ability and all the personal characteristics of merchandising command.

Temporarily, prices will purposely portray the management's idea of forcing recognition, and no justification for prevailing trade quotations can be found by the usual methods of comparison. This, it is only fair to other ready-made houses to admit. They ought not to be expected to sell as low as the purpose behind Sullivan's prices will deem advisable for an indefinite duration of time.

Quality, style, service and all the desiderata of a permanent, dependable and durable business are guaranteed, and clothing buyers are especially cautioned not to associate the offerings here made with the indiscriminate merchandise usually accompanying such prices.

SHUBERT IS NAMED AS WINNER

New Bedford, Nov. 30.—At the Union A. A. Johnny Dundee, the featherweight champion of the world, was the victim of a very bad decision. The decision went to Al Shubert, the local favorite, who had only three rounds out of ten.

Dundee did the cleaner and harder punching and was entitled to the decision by a wide margin. All that Shubert di dwas hold and hit around the kidneys throughout the battle.

Ninety percent of the crowd thought that Dundee won although they were glad to see the local bet in the featherweight ranks cop the verdict.

The judges were Jackson from Fall River and Howland from New Bedford and the referee was G. Edward Dixon from Boston.

MARQUETTE DEFEATS VERMONT UNIVERSITY

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 30.—Marquette defeated Vermont, 20 to 0, in the final game of the season and smothered the visitors under a slashing attack in the first half, which netted three touchdowns. The half was marked by long runs by Leichtfuss and Dunn.

During the remainder of the game the Milwaukee team was on the defensive against a passing game which all but brought a score to Vermont. One pass was grounded behind Marquette's last chalk line just out of reach of a Vermont end.

BOSTON SPORTING AMERICAN

Tonight's the night for all Boston College men and all Holy Cross men just as tomorrow's is the day. The night before the game smokers are on. Pep and the old paprika are handed out tonight to the students and alumni.

BOSTON'S BANNER FOOTBALL CROWD FOR EAGLE AND PURPLE

INDICATIONS POINT TO RECORD

Nearly 50,000 people, prices more if the field can be stretched a little wider, will jam their way past the turnstiles of the Wigwam and pack the field back to the fence.

News from Worcester indicates that Gannon will start at quarter with the feathery MacMahon who tips the scales at only 145 at best. This will leave the Purple lineup as follows: Butler, le.; Clarke, lt.; Coleman, lg.; Smith, c.; Barry, rg.; Sullivan, rt.; Mahoney, re.; Gannon, qb.; MacMahon, lhb.; Chabot, rhb.; Crowley, fb.

The Baggie eleven enjoyed its Thanksgiving dinner with a lot of extra fixin's not called for in the bill of fare. Not much time was given to football, however, and the boys retired early.

Ward and Kozlowsky, who have caused the Eagle no end of woe in the past few weeks are more than eager to get into the game.

Tomorrow's meeting will be the twenty-first of the series, with both teams fairly even as to wins. Boston College has taken ten of the games, the Purple nine, with the other back in 1904, a scoreless tie.

Night Before Smoker for B. C. Men at City Club

Alumni and students will throng the City Club tonight at the annual Boston College "night before" smoker. This celebration is one of the Boston College traditions, and the affair promises to be better than ever.

Mayors Curley, Childs and Quinn have promised to attend.

Frank W. Cavanaugh, the Eagle mentor, will say a few words, as will "Chuck" Darling, captain of the eleven.

Between speeces the Maroon and Gold jazz band will put life into the crowd. Several newspaper humorists will bring the evening to a close with their wit.

The committee in charge is: James F. Dooling, chairman, James Delaney, John F. Burchill, Walter Tobin, James Kelleher, Joseph Walsh, Joseph Cody and David H. Mahoney.

Genaro Beats Tremaine

New York, Nov. 30.—Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion, was awarded the decision over Carl Tremaine, of Cleveland, in their twelve round bout

CLARK AND MOODY FIGHT AT FALL RIVER

By JACK CONWAY

Jackie Clark, one of the best of our noble middleweights, will have Frank Moody of England as an opponent in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Casino A. C. of Fall River tonight. It is one of the most important bookings of the year for Fall River.

Clark is a rugged, twohanded fighter and has victories to his credit over some of the best men of his weight in the country. He has defeated George Robinson and Pal Reed in local rings, while he easily won over Young Stribling in a contest at Atlanta.

Clark also went to a draw with Harry Greb and gave away twenty pounds, and gave Tom Gibbons a gruelling tussle.

Moody is a good performer and should make things mighty interesting for Clark. As the latter was born in Fall River and his people still live in that city, it will be a home coming for Solly Snyder's protege, who has been making his own home at Allentown, Pa.

* * *

Abe Friedman New England bantamweight champion and Tommy Nee of south Boston will be surrounded by a strong preliminary card when they battle in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Armory A. A.'s show at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday night.

Eddie Resort of Nashua, N. H. and Whitey Allen of Hyde Park will meet in the semi-final of ten rounds. There will also be two lights. Buff Ivers of East Boston and Joe Donovan of Dorchester will box eight rounds at Wil Linnane Mission of South Boston and Eddie Leslie of Lewiston.

* * *

Pat McCarthy, Roxbury middleweight, has resumed training. He would like to secure a match with Johnny Wilson. Johnny is the uncrowned king of the middleweight division. This writer believes Wilson can defeat Harry Greb, middleweight boss. Wilson showed amazing form in his two recent Boston bouts and defeated George Robinson and Pal Reed by comfortable margins.

McCarthy has weight on Wilson and this is the only hitch to a possible meeting between these men. Jim MacDonald, McCarthy's manager, believes that Pat's ability as a right hand puncher would enable him to knock out Wilson.

* * *

Wilson is at Summit, N. J. where he has an elaborate training camp. Jim Buckley, former manager of Gotham, is in charge of Johnny's training.

Flatty Malone, Wilson's manager and adviser for Miami, Fla., on a few days for a short vacation. Flatty has been bothered by a heavy cold. He says he put the "Stiver" to bed in a comfortable safe in N. Y. York, and was so much on the job that he neglected to care for his cold with the result that it got worse. His physician advised that he take a trip South. Marlow's many Boston friends hope he will soon be back in this city with Wilson, who is in great demand by local fans.

* * *

Jack Malone's sensational three-round victory over George Ward proved the many complimentary things this writer has written from time to time about the St. Paul marvel. Malone made 131½ pounds for this match. There is not a fighter in the world who can defeat Malone at this poundage. "You were the first writer to give me the credit to which I feel I am entitled," Malone told us after his bout with Ward.

Incidentally we also handed out the correct tip on Bob Sage, who knocked out Jack McClellan of Somerville in two rounds.

B. C. HIGH IS WINNER OVER WALTHAM HIGH

Boston College High School by the alertness of their players emerged from a sea of mud on the Waltham athletic field a six point victor over Waltham High School who, on unfortunate break in luck fumbled the ball almost under the shadow of her own goal posts and enabled Fitzgerald to run it over for the count. Waltham did not score.

Twice within the shadow of the Waltham goals and twice failing on attempted kicks and finally unable to carry the ball a scant seven yards after brilliant charges, Boston College loomed harmless until Brinn, Waltham's left halfback, was tackled too hard for a slippery field and popped the ball into Fitzgerald's waiting arms.

ZBYSZKO BEATS STEINEKE ON TOE HOLD

Windek Zbyszko

In the feature bout Windek Zbyszko defeated Hans Steineke of Germany with a terrific toe hold. It forced Steineke to default after his bout with Ward.

They were at it for one hour and 18 minutes and thirty seconds when Zbyszko secured the toe hold, which the German could not break. He told Referee Cyclone Burns to stop the match. Zbyszko appeared at his best for so early in the season.

The show opened with an exhibition between Dr. Theodore Stojke of Nonas and Richard Schikat. Joseph Bienburg the Jewish wrestling champion and Franz Bruno the Ukranian. Bienburg won the fall and match with a double arm lock in eight minutes and forty two seconds.

The bout in which Reggie Siki the Abyssinian Tiger was pitted against Renato Gardini was won by Gardini. The colored grappler has plenty of stuff, although he was pinned to the canvas in 15 minutes and 40 seconds with a headlock, but he gave the Italian wrestler plenty of trouble.

Steve Toulas, the strong man took a chance. He chewed on a couple of four inch spikes, three quarters of an inch thick and bent them like a kid with a stick of licorice. It

SCHOENDORF FIGHTS VIC HIRSH AT LYNN

Matchmaker Jack Murphy, of the Casino A. C. of Lynn, Mass., put one over when he signed Jack Schoendorf, the Milwaukee welterweight and Vic Hirsh of Malden to battle at his club in Lynn next Monday night.

Schoendorf and Hirsh put up one of the most sensational battles ever seen in the Shoe City three weeks ago. Hirsh received the decision

NORWOOD HIGH CLASHES WITH CLIFTON

By FRED C. LANE.

Norwood High's football team awaits but the whistle of the referee to open their first intersectional game of the year playing Clifton High of New Jersey at the Norwood Civic Field on Saturday.

The visitors arrived in town today and practiced on the local field awaiting a hard struggle from the Massachusetts delegation. In playing the "Skeeters," Coach Benney Murray is sending his football warriors against a team that boosts of a fine record.

The Clifton High boys, like their opponents, has lost but one game this season. That took place early in the season when they played Rutherford High eleven of the same state. The Rutherford team won the state championship last Fall and entered the season with the same team intact.

Norwood High has suffered but one defeat. Everett High won over the charge of Coach Murrey on a safety. Since that contest they have met the strongest schoolboy elevens and have won without much opposition.

The visitors outweigh the Norwood team in their big intersectional game. According to reports coming from the Skeeters' camp, they also have a smooth working football eleven. The same can be told of the Norwood boys. They have displayed a fine game all season and have shown improvement on each appearance on the field.

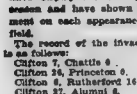
Clifton 26, Princeton 0.
Clifton 6, Rutherford 16.
Clifton 27, Alumni 6.
Clifton 13, Tuxsio 7.
Clifton 16, Patterson 0.
Clifton 13, Union Hill 0.

PANTHERS BEAT PENN STATE 20 TO 3

Pittsburgh, Nov. 30.—The Pittsburgh Panthers conquered the Penn State Lions today in their twenty-sixth annual football battle, 20 to 3, which was quite a surprise.



Little Karl Bohren of Penn assumed the place in the spotlight which it was thought before the game would go to Harry Wilson, State's noted halfback. Not only was he the star of the fray, but he also was the principal factor in stopping Wilson.

Bohren ran twenty yards for a touchdown while Pittsburgh supporters went semi-insane in the third quarter.

State scored a field goal in the first period when a short punt gave the Lions the ball in Pittsburgh's territory. Pitt soon went into the lead, scoring twice in the second quarter, and then again in the third period.

The game was the last Pittsburgh will play under Warner as coach, as the famous mentor severs his connection to begin work as coach at Leland Stanford, under a three-year contract.

YOUNG GRADWELL IS LOOKING FOR BOUTS

William "Young" Gradwell, of Somerville, who has won over all the good lightweights in the East, is finding it hard trying to get opponents to meet him. Sailor Bryon, Tommy Leahy, Johnny Schrgue and all the other 130-pound lightweights are side-tracking him. Clovis Tatze, Harry Kid Brown, Johnny Clinton and Joe Tipitis will not accept a remunerable guarantee to battle him in New England.

Norwood Beats Stoughton

Norwood High won its ninth game of the season and defeated the strong Stoughton High team on the Norwood Civic Field, 14 to 0. Captain Bud Dower scored the two touchdowns for Norwood with straight line bucks.

COMMERCE AND DORCHESTER ARE TIED

The game opened with an exchange of punts, Dorchester gained possession of the ball in the middle of the field. Successive rushes by McGuirk made nearly forty yards. Two passes from the Red and Black captain, one to Harrell and the other to Hearn, sent Hearn over for the Dorchester score.

Howard prepared to boot the extra point, but one of the Commerce linemen was offside. A second attempt also failed, when Sullivan of Commerce rushed in before the signals had even been called. The officials then ordered the tying point to be hung up on Dorchester's side of the score-board.

BROCKTON WINS FROM EASTERN OF DETROIT

Brockton, Nov. 30.—Brockton High defeated Detroit Eastern High school in the annual inter-sectional game 10 to 9.

Broderick scored first for Brockton with a field goal from the 40-yard line. In the same period Stucky, Detroit's fast quarterback duplicated the play from the 30-yard line. Broderick was brought down in his tracks during the third period on a pass from Stucky.

It was fourth down and the ball went to Detroit, who pushed the leather over for a touchdown, but failed to kick the goal.

Brockton in the final period came back on a forward pass, Anderson to Sundstrom, netted Brockton 30 yards, which brought the ball to the one-yard line. Creedon's toe bottled the goal.

VAN KEMPEN TEAMS WITH McNAMARA

New York, Nov. 30.—Manager Chapman has named what looks like one of the strongest teams in the six-day bicycle race in Peter Van Kempen, the Hollander, and Reggie McNamara, the "Iron Man." It is going to take a corking good pair to beat out this combination. Van Kempen insisted that he get an American partner, and he was teamed with McNamara.

La Follette's Views Are of Great Importance

Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin is writing a most interesting and illuminating series of articles in the Sunday Advertiser. They deal with the political, economic and social condition of Europe today as he saw it in a visit this Summer and Fall. They are of great interest and importance to American people because they are written by a man of unsurpassed political experience, unsurpassed political courage, independent mindedness and studiousness. The opinion of few Americans is of equal value and none of greater value on the political situation of Europe and the lessons which America may draw from it.

American readers are well acquainted with the opinion which this newspaper entertains concerning Senator La Follette. Many times we have declared that the valiant Senator from Wisconsin will go down in American history as one of the greatest Americans. He is one of the most consistent progressives the nation has ever produced. He is one of those rare men who make the very best fighters—a man who is gentle by nature and exceedingly affable with his friends, but who can never think of the word "sufficient" when he is in a fight.

Mr. La Follette in his first article comes to this conclusion:

"The people of almost every European country, wearied by the ten years of war and turmoil which they have endured, have lost faith in their power to control their destinies, and are in a state of mind which makes them an easy prey to the forces of reaction and tyranny.

"Disillusioned by the betrayal of all the high aims proclaimed during the war by all the statesmen of all the great powers and by the utter faithlessness of those statesmen to their pledges and most solemn declarations, is it any wonder that the people have temporarily become hopeless and despondent?

"I am convinced, as a result of my observations and investigations, that, while we have no claims to be a superior people, and as a nation have many grave defects, every American should at this time humbly offer up thanks for three things:

"For three thousand miles of Atlantic Ocean;

"For the American Union which has made us one nation, instead of a number of jealous and jarring countries, and

"For the American tradition of democracy, which, however far we may be driven from it in practice, still stands as a beacon to light our way back to the right road."

He will have six articles—one each week—in the Sunday Advertiser. Our readers, you know whether you can afford to overlook the information and the independent opinions which Senator La Follette will give you in these articles.

Why Not Light Custom House Clock?

The Custom House tower is the tallest spire in New England. It is so situated that it apparently stands at the foot of the great radial streets of the city, and it serves as a clock for the entire community.

Why is it not illuminated at night by radial-light?

Public buildings should always give the most efficient service, and the sky-reaching tower of the Custom House should be made to serve a great public convenience at night. Moreover, it would decorate our nocturnal skyline.

French Prosperity

Starvation Threatening Germany

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

France reports great industrial activity, exports of 24 billion francs in 1922, as against 18 billions the year before the war. The gain is fictitious, as regards real money, since the franc is worth now less than a third its value in 1913. But there is no doubt that France is recovering—at the moment.

A well-informed German, one of those that helped represent Germany at Versailles, just arrived in this country, predicts widespread starvation in Germany within three months. That may upset European calculations still further. Starving people are sometimes hard to manage.

Riots and burning of rich men's houses in Silesia indicate that trouble of the Bolshevist brand is coming.

Captain McCoy owns the two-masted schooner Tomaka, does a rum-running business under the British flag and seems to succeed.

When United States Coast Guards got him and his ship he had $68,000 in American cash on board, and was proud to admit that the money came "from good old prohibition." He fought hard against capture.

The gentleman made a mistake, however, when he fired at the United States Coast Guard. It is said the British government will inquire into the seizure, because it was made six miles out.

The accused sheep stealer said. "I'll kill any sheep that bites me." That might suggest an answer for Uncle Sam, who seems recently to lack vim in answering British questions about the high seas, as when our ships were stopped and searched in the late war.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON MEASURING THE STARS

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

SUPPOSE two electric lights of the same brightness, or the same candle power, to be placed at different distances from the observer. Everybody knows that the nearer light will appear brighter than the one farther away. But everybody may not be aware that if the distance of one of the lights is known, that of the other can easily be ascertained by measuring the ratio of the apparent brightness of the two lights to one another.

This simple principle is being applied to discover the distance of stars so remote that a more direct method of measurement is not practicable, and to it we owe in a large degree the imposing expansion that the ideas of astronomers have lately undergone with regard to the dimensions of the universe.

But first let us try to understand the principle and see how it works. "Oh, yes," someone may say, "I can see how it is. Of course if one light is twice as far away as the other, it will appear only half as bright."

HOW LIGHT SPREADS.

Ah, but you are mistaken! If one light is twice as far away as the other, its apparent brightness will not be one-half, but it will be only one-quarter as great as that of the nearer light. And if one is ten times as far as the other, it will appear not ten times, but a hundred times fainter than the nearer one.

The reason for this is that light spreads radially in all directions from its source, so that its intensity varies not directly as the distance but inversely as the square of the distance. The farther it gets from its source the greater is the area over which the same quantity of light must spread, and the area increases in proportion to the square of the distance.

Now, taking this rule to work by, let us suppose that of two equal lights we know the distance of the nearer one and wish to find out that of the farther one. Say the nearer one is 200 yards distant. By careful measurement we find that its apparent brightness is nine times that of the farther one.

Since the brightness varies inversely as the square of the distance, we see that the square root of nine, which is three must represent the ratio of the distance of the nearer to that of the farther light. Then, multiplying 200 yards by 3 we get 600 yards as the distance of the farther light. We assume, of course, that there is no noticeable loss of light in the atmosphere, which might be true enough for short distances.

Now for the astronomical application. The early astronomers thought of applying this principle to the measurement of star distances, but they found that it would not work because the stars are not by any means all of equal actual brightness, so that it cannot always be inferred that a faint star is farther away than a bright one.

GAUGING DISTANCES.

So, until recently, the attempt to use this method of gauging stellar distances, except for general statistical purposes, was abandoned. But lately it has been found out that there are stars of certain spectral types in whose spectra particular lines vary in intensity with the actual luminosity of the star. This correlation of the intensity of spectral lines with intrinsic brightness enables the astronomer to apply the simple principle that we have explained to the measurement of star distances.

It does so because when the intrinsic brightness, or "absolute magnitude," of a star is known its apparent brightness at once reveals its relative distance as compared with other stars of its own spectral class. Then, it is only necessary to know the actual distance of any one of these in order to calculate that of the others from their apparent brightness.

This method is not as yet applicable to all the spectral classes, but it works with a multitude of stars, and it has enormously extended the limits of astronomical measurement, and gives promise of extending them still farther. And this is only one of the new methods that have been applied in the united effort which astronomers are now making to solve the great fundamental question of the form and size of the vast universe, in a remote little corner of which our earth hovers in the light of one of the smaller sort of stars.

BLAME FOR PRESSURE OF BLOOD

COLUMBUS, Ohio—That mortality may be reduced by teaching of the public how to control high blood pressure is the belief voiced by Dr. Martin A. Martensen, of Battle Creek, Mich., in an address here.

He declared that persons should be suspicious of chronic cases of morning headaches, nervous disorders, and, in later life, dizzy spells, vertigo, palpitations and chest pains.

Careful watch on the arterial tension of youthful patients was urged by Dr. Martensen, who asserted that research prompted his belief that "there may be more than a little truth in the theory that high blood pressure is often attributable to heredity."

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

By BRUNO LESSING

THE dictum of Ecclesiastes that "there is no new thing under the sun," has long been discarded.

It is a severe strain upon the mind to attempt to keep abreast of the wonders of science; a much severer strain to try to figure out the possibilities and probabilities of the future.

Music played in England has been heard by the owners of amateur radio sets in the United States. Several people along the Atlantic seaboard distinctly heard a human voice exclaim, "Hello, America!"

The sounds were faint but clear. The mechanism is still immature but it is moving nearer to perfection each day. And what will happen when it is perfect?

What will happen when each of us, by merely switching a lever or whirling a disk on our little set, can hear some individual in Russia, Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, China or Senegambia open a conversation by saying, "Hello, America?"

Will they tell us their troubles or will they give us new ideas and thoughts that we can make our own?

It is all new and all the steps of improvement will be new. But will it make us any wiser or better? There is no one whom we know in the world today who is as wise as Aristotle was. And yet Aristotle had no radio or telephone or automobile or hot and cold water plumbing. He merely had a brain. How will broadcasting from Europe affect our brains?

Subway Signs

Editor Boston American:

Does the Boston Elevated Railway Company think that people think every time they go down the subway stairs they are about to ride in a steamboat or in an airplane or blimp? You see the meaningless words, "trains" or "cars," in big letters in the midst of a hundred other signs which confuse and bewilder more than they give guidance in those underground labyrinths. Ten times in the ten days that I have been in and around Boston I have thought it would be nice to go to Charlestown and see historic Bunker Hill Monument. In every instance I said to myself: "But I do not know how to get to Charlestown from where I am. To try to find the way might take more time than it is worth. I might as well let it go." That is human nature. It is just the way 10,000 residents and strangers in Boston feel about some little trip to some unfamiliar part of the city or its suburbs every day in the year. The company loses 20 cents in each case of "let it go." That means it loses three-quarters of a million dollars per annum. If the company derives more than that amount from the advertising posters in stations, the advertisers are paying too much. Ask any passenger in the subway—if you dare—what he thinks of those posters.

FRANK M. HOWE.

Dividing the Bonus

Editor Boston American:

As the Federal bonus under discussion would be paid alike to able bodied and disabled veterans of the World War, may I suggest that we who came out of the war uninjured devise a plan for sharing our proportion of the bonus with those who were incapacitated and who really need and deserve help from the government? It would be decidedly unfair to give the able bodied men as large an amount as the disabled—in fact, giving a bonus to the men who are self-supporting will greatly lessen the government's ability to provide for those who need its assistance.

J. PERCY GALLEGO.

From Forty-Seven

Editor Boston American:

It is possible that girls have dressed to please men, but I for one can't say I am pleased with the present way of dressing. There is nothing nice, becoming, chic and pleasing with a straight up and down stovepipe silhouette. Looks like a telephone post—waistless, hipless, bustless—no form, figure or curves—nothing womanly, charming and alluring.

As a matter of fact, a man's figure and form is now quite often of a more pleasing and symmetrical line than woman's. They often appear with a better vest set-up, trim figure than woman.

Can it be possible that an evolution is taking place, that women are abondoning womanliness and getting mannish, while the men are getting more particular as to their looks, figure and appearances?

I believe it will be necessary for the women to change their tactics or manner of dressing, get on corsets, and present a better figure and manners. There are few who will deny that most any woman looks better, clothes worn to better advantage and set off better, if a corset is worn. Without a corset a woman is not only not dressed, but untidy.

Let the men wear corsets also, if they so desire; it will help them to preserve a far better appearance. There is no need to go to extremes by attaining a wasp waist by tight lacing, busties or crinolines—just dress with common sense—and a corset, if worn right, cannot but help to improve any one's appearance and give us lovely women with a womanly figure and form.

FORTY-SEVEN.

Pity the Bald!

Editor Boston American:

The baldheads have lately attempted some self-vindication that is humorous if not childish. The false claim is made that baldheaded men are brainier than hairy heads, and dozens are alleged to have concluded that baldness is caused from the friction of an active brain. But how different are the facts; baldness comes mainly from two causes—lack of food element, "silicon" (SiO_2), and hatbands too tight on the head.

And I dare Mr. Armour to pick any present-day baldheaded men who have accomplished as much with their brains as the late Mr. Steinmetz, Thomas Edison, David Belasco and Lloyd George, all men with a fair growth of hair even at their age.

Asks Help of Friends

Editor Helping Hand:

I have read so much of your wonderful work, so I thought you might help these people, as they are too proud to write themselves. The husband was hurt about four years ago and the result was an operation on his leg several times until nothing more can be done until it reaches a time for it to be amputated. He has a wife and two little girls between the ages of one and three years. His wife is expecting the stork any time now and she is in poor health.

They certainly are in need, so thought that through your kindness, you might help them.

It would make your heart ache to see the children in want. I only wish I could help them myself so as not to have to ask you, but I am a poor woman myself. I am trying to be their friend unknowingly.

Dentist Offers Free Treatment

I have, during the past three years, been doing dental work on the deserving who can't afford to pay for same. I usually have two patients constantly coming to me, and have thus helped about 70 patients.

I have just got finished with one patient and am writing to your column to see whether you know of some deserving person who is in need of dental work, such as X-ray treatments, fittings and cleaning.

If you have one, kindly call me up for appointment any afternoon between 1 and 4 p. m. When I get through with the patient I have now I will then call upon you to furnish me another patient, etc., etc.

I think, from past experience, that this kind of charity has a most lasting element and is fully appreciated with those I have come in contact with.

Thank you for your generous offer. We will gladly supply the names of two deserving persons as soon as we get them.

Offer of Overcoat

Editor Helping Hand:

Seeing the request of a mother for an overcoat for her boy, will say I have an overcoat, not new, but good and warm, which I think would do her son to wear to work. I also have several suits of underwear which would be very useful to him, all clean and whole. She signed herself Mrs. W. N. If you will give me her address, I will be glad to give them to her; or he could call any evening after six o'clock.

I think you are doing a wonderful lot of good.

Editor Helping Hand:

Please thank the dear, kind, unknown friend who sent me one dollar today. It was badly needed, as I did not have one cent to my name, and my oil lamp was empty, and I am nine dollars behind in my rent. Just today I have been ordered to move, so I have asked the landlord to give me one more chance. I am hand to mouth. No food nor fire. Your column is wonderful. Thank you one and all. I am grateful for any help.

I am writing to ask if you can give me a maternity dress size 40, and some baby clothes. I need a dress very badly, and also need clothes for a three-year-old baby. My husband makes very small pay and I cannot very well afford to buy clothing. I would appreciate anything given to me, and hope that some day I will be able to help somebody. Hope I am not asking for too much.

STELLA DALLAS By Olive Higgins Prouty

New and Intensely Interesting Serial of a Marriage of an Educated Man to an Untutored Woman

Laurel is greeted by Mrs. Morrison

HOW THE STORY STARTED

Stella Dallas and her husband, Stephen, do not live together. They have a daughter, thirteen years old, named Laurel, who stays most of the year with the mother. These two are now at a Summer hotel in New England, where the other guests look askance at the painted, overdressed elder woman. The time has come for Laurel to visit her father in New York. He meets her at the station and takes her to a hotel. She goes to visit Mrs. Morrison.

By OLIVE HIGGINS PROUTY

Author of "Bobbie, General Manager," "The Fifth Wheel," "The Star in the Window," Etc.

"THIS is Laurel, Michael," called out Mrs. Morrison to the dog. "Come and tell her how glad we are to see her."

The dog got up, stretched and wagged his tail languidly. Then with a sudden brightening of expression, a sudden tightening of muscles, he barked twice, and shoved past Mrs. Morrison and Laurel towards Stephen, making joyous little whining sounds as he fell to lavishing damp dog-kisses on the hand that held Laurel's suitcase.

"There's no doubt about how glad he is to see your father, is there?" laughed Mrs. Morrison. "Michael adores your father, Laurel, as we all do around here," she added carelessly. "Come, we'll run upstairs, and wash your hands. Give me the suitcase, Stephen."

"Laurel will take the suitcase," said Stephen. "It's not heavy."

"Yes, I'll take it," said Laurel.

"All right. Come along. And, oh, Stephen," Mrs. Morrison called back over her shoulder, in that sort of singing voice of hers, "just light the hot water, will you please?"

There was a tea-table, with a white cloth near one of the windows, with shining silver on it, and shining tea-cups and a plate or two of snowy sandiwches and a basket of frosted cakes. "We'll be down in a minute."

Upstairs, inside the most exquisite little bathroom Laurel had ever stepped foot in—creamy tiles clear to the ceiling, creamy floor, creamy fittings, not a scrap of nickel in sight—everything all smoth shining porcelain, like the inside of a beautiful china cup, Laurel thought—Mrs. Morrison said, "Here's the washcloth, and here's the soap, and here's the towel. Use them, and then come into this room. It's mine. I'm going to have you in with me. And take off your things. Put them on the bed next to the wall —your bed—then come downstairs. And don't be long. I'll hurry down ahead and get your father started on his tea. He's got to go right back to town." And she left Laurel.

Very carefully Laurel followed her directions, gazing wonderingly about her as she did so, examining various details with investigating nose and finger tips; sniffing the soap; ever so cautiously opening the door of the medicine chest; touching with a gentle forefinger the silk window-hangings in the bedroomtouching with the same gentle forefinger its ivory-colored walls; the shade of the lamp on the table between the beds.

It was made of real filet! So, too, were the curious little pillows on the beds. (Laurel had never seen tiny pillows like that on grown-up beds.) So, too, was the bureau-scarf, and the tidy on the back of the zig winged-chair by the windqw. All real filet! And just the simplest little piece of filet cost six-fifty in the neckwear department.

Standing in the centre of the bedroom, Laurel drew a deep breath, and gazed about her. What a lovely bedroom it was! Yellow. Ish—like pale sunshine. She decided that it was lovelier even than her present luxurious apartment at the hotel. It was lovelier than any apartment in any hotel she had ever caught a glimpse of through half-open doors on her way to and from elevators.

After she had taken off her hat and coat and had them on the bed next to the wall as directed (her bed, she would be sleeping in it tonight!) she opened the door and went out into the upper hall. She stole noiselessly down the broad staircase—there was a tall, slender, light-mahogany grandfather's clock on the landing, and a high window with pink-and-white petunias making it bright in a window-box outside—and noiselessly approached the door of the big room where she had left her father.

There were others in the room now besides her father and Mrs. Morrison. She could tell from the voices. She stopped when she reached the threshold. Nobody saw her, nobody heard her, and she had a moment to gaze unobserved at the scene before her.

It was like a scene at the "movies," with all those books and the piano, and the comfortable chairs, and the big portrait hanging over the fireplace, and the pretty lady behind the steaming teakettle, and the dog, and the boys (there were three boys in the room. One of them, the littlest one, was seated in her father's lap—only it was real!

There were real bindings on the books, real reading in them, there was real tea in the teapot. The people were real, and their feelings for each other were real, too. She, standing on the outside, was the only unreal thing in this home scene.

She looked at her father. Suddenly the room faded, disappeared, and a close-up of his face dawned on the screen before her, as it were. Why, her father was gazing at the lady behind the teakettle, as if—as if—! Laurel had seen too many close-ups of faces not to recognize that look! She drew in her breath sharply. It flashed over Laurel that perhaps this man wasn't really her father after all!

Mrs. Morrison glanced over her shoulder.

"Oh! come here, Laurel," she exclaimed at sight of her, and stretched out her arm, and kept it stretched out until Laurel had stepped within its circle.

"This is Laurel, here," she said briefly. Then, still holding Laurel, not giving her even a chance to go through the agony of a series of curtsies, she went on, "These are your new friends, Laurel. Cornelius, over there by the piano, is the oldest. 'Con' we call him for short. And Dane comes next. 'Great Dane' they call him at school. But I call him little Dane. And the little boy in your father's lap is Frederick. 'Rick' is his nickname. He's the baby —five years old now. We haven't any little girl for you, Laurel," she sighed. How lucky! No girls! Boys weren't half as cruel.

"And now," Mrs. Morrison broke off, "I wonder would you pass this cup of tea I'm making to your father? And, Con, dear, will you pass the sandwiches? Get down, Rickie, and run and get your rabbit and bring it in and show it to Laurel. And, Dane, take Michael out. Michael," she explained to Laurel, "is not fond of Mercedes' society. Mercedes being the rabbit," she smiled.

They were all busy in no time—all but Mrs. Morrison and Stephen, each rushing about on some errand or other. There wasn't a chance for pause or embarrassment. The same rare insight and understanding which made Helen Morrison's dinner parties such a success was quite as reliabld with children, or with servants, or with the factory girls at the settlement house in which she was interested.

Not only did everybody with whom Helen Morrison worked and played get on beautifully with her, but under her gentle management they got on beautifully with one another, too. And yet she seemed to make no effort in adjusting herself to the various ages, groups, and classes with which she came in contact. That was why she was so successful with Laurel. It was her apparent unawareness that she was saying or doing anything diplomatic that broke through the barrier of silence and reserve which Laurel had behind whenever she met strangers.

The women whom Laurel met when visiting her father never by any chance, even indirectly, referred to her mother. It would have been a "break" if they had. Laurel knew that. But Mrs. Morrison referred to her mother, and the very first night, too, scarcely an hour after her father had said good-bye.

Mrs. Morrison Helps

They were upstairs together unpacking. No chambermaid, no lady's-maid assisted at the task. In fact Laurel had begun to wonder if any servants existed in this household. Mrs. Morrison alone helped her, carefully hanging dress after dress in a closet near by, and exclaiming over each one, how pretty she thought it was. What a lovely color! Like jonquils one; like violets another; like a meadow sprinkled with tiny daisies, a certain English print.

It was when she was hanging up the last dress in the closet that she remarked, ever so naturally, "I think your mother has beautiful taste, Laurel."

Laurel spoke up quickly. She had replied so far by only necessary yes-thank-yous and no-thank-yous to Mrs. Morrison, and if-you-pleases—that sort of thing, but now she exclaimed, "My mother has the most beautiful taste in the world!"

She didn't know she was going to say just that, nor that her words were going to rush out in such an unfamiliar fashion. She blushed.

But Mrs. Morrison didn't seem to think her reply odd. She didn't even look at her. She said:

"I've always wanted a alittle girl. It's such fun to dress them. I can see your mother has had great fun getting all your pretty things to match and blend."

Later when Laurel asked her which dress she should put on for dinner, Mrs. Morrison replied, "Why, I don't know, I'm sure. Which dress do you think your mother would have you put on?"

Refers to Mother

She kept on referring to her mother casually like that right along. "Perhaps," thought Laurel, "she doesn't know there's any reason not to." And yet, being a friend of her father's, how could she help but know that her mother and father didn't live together like other people. Perhaps she didn't know why they didn't live together, just as Laurel herself didn't know why. "Whatever the explanation, Mrs. Morrison's frank and open recognition of her mother as a human being, and a human being, too, not unlike her lovely self, warmed Laurel, thawed out her mistrust and fear.

Before twenty-four hours had passed, Laurel was worshiping Mrs. Morrison with that admiring kind of worship that a young girl, not quite a child, and yet not a woman, often feels for some stranger who stops and smiles.

She didn't talk very much at first. She was too engrossed observing unfamiliar surroundings and watching Mrs. Morrison. It was as interesting as reading a new book almost. The ways and habits of a private home were very curious. For instance, you were introduced to the servants. Could in—spic-and-span gray-and-white did appear finally.

What Is the Effect Upon the Two, and Especially Upon Their Strange and Beautiful Child Laurel?

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"Hauled over the coals."

Our expression for being reprimanded has been in general use for centuries, and is, no doubt, founded on the old "ordeal by fire," to prove or disprove one's statements.

"Quoth othe Raven 'Nevermore.'"

These familiar words are from "The Raven," by Edgar Allan Poe (1809-1849).

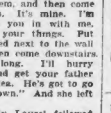
WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

I FEARED they were crystallizing into plants. I felt that drive to town with Ruth Gregory had hardened her purpose, and I meant to bare my heart to Pat and to make him realize that even if Virginia didn't feel that my marriage was an ideal one, it was my ideal one.



Ann Lisle

When I talk with Pat at Dreamwold it is, always with a consciousness of Virginia's presence and influence. She seems forever hovering near even when she isn't actually present. But in his office, I thought we could go into things frankly and without any sense of some other spirit guiding us.

So when I trotted off to Pat's office it was with a two-fold purpose. Neal's allowance would come first. Then I'd ask Pat to try to make Virginia see that she was running amuck and was in a fair way to do Jim and me grave harm. And Pat's greeting, when I arrived, was so warm and friendly that I felt sure I could count on him to give me his honest best.

When I pushed my check across the desk to him, he started in astonishment.

"'Tis a wonder you are, Alanna," he cried. "This check now—'tis for the same large sum you brought me a month ago. Aren't you reckless with your money, my dear?"

I smiled back at him.

"You wouldn't let me commit myself to a definite sum and definite dates of payment, but I'm hoping that I can keep to my own schedule of monthly instalments. I'll never rest content until Neal comes back to prove his own innocence—or his sister has paid off the sum that vanished with him. Surely you understand that by now, Pat?"

"I think shame of myself for taking the' money a brave girl like you works so hard to get together," replied Pat soberly. "But I know how cruel 'twould be to refuse to let you go through with your—sacrifice. And I'll be after telling you, I'd give more than the money you're paying if only I could believe in the lad and be telling you so with my heart in the words."

"At least you wish you could have faith. That's more than can be said of some—" I began bitterly.

But Pat broke in eagerly:

"Alanna, 'tis glad I am we have this moment alone. Of course I had to telephone to Carlotta to be here, since the business of our meeting is hers as well as mine. But before she comes I'll be saying this to you: Never think that you've a better friend than Jamie. 'Tis yourself she loves as much as Jim, and 'tis of your happiness as well as his she is after thinking.

"I've helped her see that 'tis an honor to any family to count in it a woman of such honesty as you are showing—and of such fine loyalty as well, Alanna. And for your sake, as well as her brother's, Virginia invites you to come to us this week-end for what we may be calling a family conference——"

The words, so glum in their import, though Pat spoke them so gently and easily, were interrupted before I could demand that he make his meaning clearer. For Carlotta hailed us from the doorway:

"I was ready to start when you telephoned, Pat. So I came right along thinking if I beat Anne to it I could do a few chores round the office. And now here we are, we three, meeting again to rob Peter to pay Paul, no doubt. Which brings me to saying, 'tis for the same large sum you brought Anne a month ago. Aren't you reckless with your money, my dear?"

I smiled back at him.

"You wouldn't let me commit myself to a definite sum and definite dates of payment, but I'm hoping that I can keep to my own schedule of monthly instalments. I'll never rest content until Neal comes back to prove his own innocence—or his sister has paid off the sum that vanished with him. Surely you understand that by now, Pat?"

"I think shame of myself for taking the' money a brave girl like you works so hard to get together," replied Pat soberly. "But I know how cruel 'twould

AGAINST BLANK WALL

NEVER GIVE UP STRUGGLE TO SUCCEED

By Beatrice Fairfax.

"I'M up against a blank wall," writes Hendrick S. "I am at a standstill in business. I have few or no real friends. I am disgusted with myself — and with life. Every disappointing, disillusioning thing that can happen to a man has happened to me. At thirty-two I have to call myself a failure. I'm puttering along earning three hundred dollars a month, when the fellows who got out of college with me are making three or four times that sum.

"I didn't have one interesting week-end all Summer or meet one interesting person. I'm so blue and miserable and discouraged that I don't see how I can go on. If only one decent thing would come my way — but what's the use? It won't. Now what would you do in my position?"

I'd get out of it! I'd remember that no pendulum ever swung six inches to the right without having to swing six inches to the left in turn. And I'd not get discouraged about the pendulum until I'd given it a chance to make its return swing.

Misery is self-created. I know you don't believe that — but it has proved true so often that you've no right to challenge the statement until you've either proved or disproved it. Misery comes from your own reaction to circumstances—not from what is happening to you.

Sit down and examine the disappointings thing that have happened to you. Try to find one at which you can laugh. No matter what a little thing it is, when you find yourself smiling at it, you will be doing a mental squaring back of your shoulders which will make the hurt look rather small and distant.

Then make up your mind that no able-bodied, sane-minded man of thirty-two has to be the victim of circumstances. Your own victim you can be. But you don't have to!

Thirty-six hundred dollars a year is good money. It is about three times the average earning capacity of our male citizens. Start thinking that you've done pretty well so far (which you have) and realize that you can do better. You don't know a thing about the problems or worries or miseries of the men who are earning three or four times what you make. They may be eating their hearts out over troubles so great that you would shrink appalled from them if you could know of them.

You undoubtedly know a great many folks who would find life much pleasanter if you were a little kind to them. Never mind the folks who haven't invited you to their Summer homes. Find someone who yearns to go to the beach for a day or to a roof-garden or a good motion picture. Start offering hospitality instead of waiting for it to be offered to you.

Find something to be grateful for. You won't receive more benefits until you are thankful for those who already possess and start using them. Just make use of what you have and a lot more of which you don't dream will be revealed to you.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

THE different steamship companies are building their boats so large now that it won't be long before we'll have to be making our ocean bigger.

IN another car, our largest vessel will be tied to New York and rub up against Liverpool.

IT will be so long that the captain will only have to reverse it two feet in order to back into Hamburg.

A PASSENGER can be in the stern of the boat at Hoboken when it starts, keep walking for a week and then get to England two days after the ship arrives there.

A STEAMSHIP official says he's building a boat now that's so large the passengers will have to take taxicabs from the dining hall to their state-rooms.

IN a few years you'll actually be able to go from San Francisco to China by automobile.

CAN you imagine receiving this kind of a wire from a friend. "Would have been in Hong Kong tomorrow only we had a puncture in Japan yesterday."

PASSENGERS who can't afford cars will have to put roller skates on their steamer chairs.

IF the steamship companies do build ships which touch the United States with one end and England with the other, it will be a wonderful thing for the working man. Poor people will then be able to walk to Europe.

REALLY BE WHAT YOU PRETEND TO BE.

Have you lied about yourself that you are beginning to believe yourself some of the things which you really know are untrue?

Why try to deceive yourself into thinking that you are what you should be when you know that you are not what you pretend to be?

Supposing you were as good a man as you try to lead others to think.

Supposing you were as good a husband and father as you tell on occasion when you want to show off.

Wouldn't it be a fine thing if you really were the loyal true friend you would lead certain persons to think.

There are times in your life when you would give anything you possess to be able to look into your own heart and recognize its sincerity.

To be a real, true-blue fellow would require some self sacrifice, and you balk there.

It is all right to be the real thing if you can continue the course you want selfishly, but sacrifice—that is different.

Is this your idea?
